Debate Poll Shows Ford Gained Slight Edge Over Carter

By DONALD M. BOTSBERG
AP Political Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Both President Ford and Jimmy Carter are claiming victory in the first of the 1976 debates. But a nationwide Associated Press poll showed today that neither candidate was the clear winner, although Ford attracted slightly more new supporters.

The restrained yet contentious confrontation was laden with economic statistics and political rhetoric but barren of any new proposals.

"I thought I did well," the Democratic nominee told reporters as he left the Walnut Street Theater, site of the debate. Carter said he had wanted to stress what he considers Ford's lack of leadership "and I think I did that very adequately."

"I enjoyed it very much," Ford said on leaving the theater. Asked who won, the President replied, "The American people."

Later, Ford told supporters, "We have a turning point in this campaign. ... The momentum is on our side."

The AP poll was conducted among 1,065 scientifically chosen viewers who were questioned both before and immediately after the debate. It showed that 34.4 per cent of those who watched on television thought Ford had won and 31.8 per cent thought Carter had won. The rest, 33.8 per cent, didn't or couldn't pick a winner.

Statistically, the margin between Ford and Carter was too small for a clear winner to be declared. Experts say that a sample of this size could err by 2.9 per cent from what the result would be if all viewers were polled.

Viewers were asked their preference for president. Carter supporters numbered 45.3 per cent before the debate and 46.9 per cent afterward. Ford was preferred by 41 per cent of the voters before the debate and 44.9 per cent afterward.

The undecided vote dropped from 11.9 per cent before to 7.1 after.

The poll was taken for The AP by Chilton Research Services of Radnor, Pa. The firm specializes in high-speed telephone polling.

The debate, covering economic issues and domestic policy, was scheduled to run 90 minutes but was interrupted by an electronic failure that cut off sound to viewers and pushed the candidates' closing statements well past 11 p.m.

The candidates fielded 12 questions from a panel of three reporters. The topics ranged from unemployment, inflation and taxes to amnesty, government reorganization and domestic spying by government agencies.

Carter described Ford as insensitive to the plight of the unemployed and said that the President's 56 vetoes since he took office represented a "government of stalemate."

At the outset of the debate, Ford accused Carter of failing to be specific in his proposals. The President said his Democratic opponent was advocating programs calling for "more spending, bigger deficits, more inflation and more taxes."

The second debate scheduled for Oct. 6 in San Francisco and will cover foreign policy and national security. A third, with no limitation on the subject matter, will be held Oct. 22. The vice presidential candidates, Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and Bob Dole, R-Kan., will debate sometime the week of Oct. 11.

But the candidates and their advisers felt the first debate would be the one likely to have the most lasting impression on the voters and the one to set a pattern for the others.

Members of Carter's staff said they felt the former Georgia governor should avoid strongly worded, direct attacks on Ford which voters might resent as showing disrespect for the presidency.

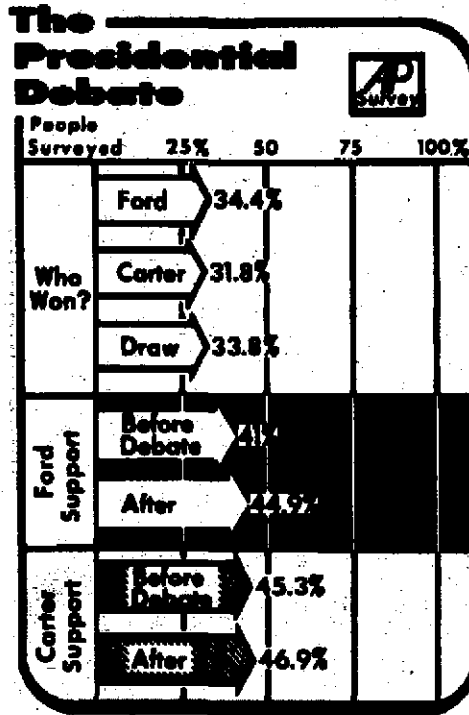

Nonetheless, the Democratic

An in-house investigation of a CETA-funded manpower training program operating in Benton Harbor, which was prompted earlier this month by charges made in an anonymous letter, led to the dismissal of a top staff member, Berrien CETA Director Weidon L. Burden said yesterday.

REV. DONALD ADAMS

While there was truth to some of the charges made in the letter against Opportunities Industrialization Center (OIC), most of the allegations were found to be false by that program's board of directors, according to Burden.

The unsigned letter, a summary of which appeared in this newspaper Sept. 8, was found to be correct on the following points, said Burden: — The man who was OIC's director of services, a top position according to Burden, was found not to have the educational background that had been indicated to OIC, the OIC board reported. The OIC directors "terminated" the man's employment, according to Burden, who identified him as Tim Holly.

— The OIC board's investigation indicated that charges of excessive tardiness and poor attendance on the part of some OIC instructors were true, according to Burden.

— Allegations that some of the instructors may not have been as qualified as originally intended by the program were found to be true but, Burden added, "that doesn't mean they are not qualified to operate the program."

Found to be false were charges that program funds were misappropriated; that the training records of some of the students had been falsified; that

Sound Blackout Stalls Debate

By SAUL PEIT

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The greatest technological civilization in the history of all mankind seemed to come unglued last night during the greatest television event since man walked on the moon which, in the opinion of a previous presidential debater, was the greatest single event since Creation.

And that is what all of us 100 to 200 million — or was it billion? — fans out there in TV land will remember instead of who won.

For 27 minutes in a low drama of high frustration witnessed from coast to coast and pole to pole and simultaneously translated into almost every language except Urdu, the two major candidates for the most powerful office in the entire universe remained helplessly at their little plywood lecterns like two cases of arrested motion in a jammed piece of silent film.

They smiled lamely now and then, but they stayed on their feet as if neither dared to be the first to sit. After all, in this cosmic battle of imagery, who wants to elect a man president who can't stand on his own two feet and say nothing at the same time?

Jimmy Carter finally took the risk. He sat. Gerald Ford didn't. He remained on his feet, frozen in an aggressive pose, leaning forward, hands clutching the lectern, like a sprinter waiting for a gun that wouldn't go off.

Throughout the 27 minutes, while only eight and a half feet apart, while technicians crawled frantically around for the unplugged plug, the two gladiators never spoke to each other or acknowledged the other man's presence.

The collective talents of Edwin Booth, Sarah Bernhardt, W.C. Fields, the Barrymores and all the other great artists who trod the boards of the old Walnut Street Theater here, said the breakdown was in "a pool audio distribution amplifying system" used to send the sound to the other networks.

More than 15 minutes into the historic delay that stopped the world, while the highlights were still blazing and the camera shifted momentarily away, Ford did a bold thing against all the conventional wisdom. He took out a handkerchief and mopped his face.

Carter shot him a glance and whipped out his own handkerchief. Both men, of course, were acutely aware that Richard Nixon (the chap who said the moon walk was the greatest thing since Creation) lost his first shot at the presidency by sweating on a coat to coast bookup.

ABC, which was in charge of the technical operations of televising the debate from the Walnut Street Theater here, said the breakdown was in "a pool audio distribution amplifying system" used to send the sound to the other networks.

Calling the 27-minute gap in the presidential debate debut a "travesty," Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., said Congress should change the law next week to allow the two remaining Ford-Carter debates to be held in a television studio where the equipment won't fail.

Van Deerlin, head of the House communications subcommittee, said the failure of the sound system during the debate requires steps to prevent "another spectacle like this."

"This was just a travesty seeing the President of the United States and his challenger standing there like props for the better part of half an hour."

Until the 27-minute gap in sound heard round the world, it is alleged by some that we saw a debate. Others insist, however, that the two adversaries could have achieved the same general affect by conducting separate news conferences in Washington and Plains, Ga.

For most of this forensic Armageddon, the combatants appeared to be belling each other with heavy segments of their basic campaign speeches. Each came armed with Gatling guns loaded with statistics, and insisted on firing them.

In the hiatus of sound, the resourceful networks wrung answers out of Ron Nessen, Ford's press secretary, and Rosalynn Carter, wife of the Democrat. Nessen averred that his boss was the clear winner. Mrs. Carter allowed as how Jimmy did best.

It seemed a fair sample.

Commies Want U-M Band At Rally

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Communist Party Presidential candidate Gus Hall has gone to the state Court of Appeals in an attempt to force the University of Michigan marching band to play at a campaign rally. Hall said because the university let the band play at President Ford's rally last week that the band should play at Hall's rally today in Ann Arbor. Only seven members of the band were in favor of playing for Hall in a vote taken last week. University officials say the band can decide for itself whether to perform for someone.

The Battle Of The Bottle

In its own sphere, Proposal A is stirring up as much heat and dust as the right to abortion vs. right to life controversy generates.

It is a piece of direct legislation which would ban the non-returnable container for beer and soft drinks.

Beyond taking the non-returnable out of the supermarket it would slap a dime deposit on containers that only one manufacturer can use. The charge would drop to a nickel if more than one producer can use the returnable. As a final backstopper to putting the non-returnable out of commission, the proposal shuts off further utilization of the removable pulltab.

The matter is one which the legislature normally would pass upon, but because the solons at Lansing have ducked the controversy, the proponents for Proposal A have bypassed that bottleneck through the initiative process.

Here is the lineup in this battle for the voters to decide on November 2d.

Pressing for adoption are the ecologically and aesthetically minded who shudder at the undeniable roadside litter splashed against the Michigan landscape. They are joined by the Michigan State Highway Department and most local road commissions whose budgets are strained by the cost of picking up roadside junk. Governor Milliken has endorsed the proposal for both reasons.

Opposing the idea are organized labor and the container manufacturers who claim Proposal A will increase unemployment and boost manufacturing and distribution costs. Store managers and beverage wholesalers fight it because the returnable container greatly adds to an already difficult merchandise handling problem.

Somewhere between those extremes is the consumer who is wearing two hats.

As a customer, he or she prefers the convenience of tossing the non-returnable into the trash can over wrestling empty returnables back to the store for a deposit refund.

As a householder, whether renter or home owner, he or she boils at picking up the junk tossed on to the property by some thoughtless slob.

While the non-returnable has raised the litter volume, it is not the complete monster the Proposal A advocates make it out to be and there is a geographical variance in the total trash picture.

Paper is the largest single element in litter. Volumetrically, cans and bottles run a poor second to trash paper of all types.

Further, banning the non-returnable will not eliminate heaving a returnable beer or coke bottle out of a car.

Proposal A would reduce some of the highway litter, but it will not, as its proponents claim, clean up the landscape in toto.

In travelling the highways the comparison between litter on the interstates and the secondary roads is rather startling. It is along the latter where the trash accumulation is heavy to the point of being sickening. The interstates are relatively free from junk.

Several thoughts hint at the reason for the distinction.

Police patrols concentrate on the interstates for speed control and accident prevention. Motorists are aware of this and as a consequence are less inclined to risk being detected throwing refuse out of their vehicles.

The interstates, at least in Michigan, are more prominently marked with signs calling attention to the state's anti-litter statute.

Finally, we have a hunch the highway department gives more attention in every respect to the interstates than it does to the secondary roads. This would include trash removal.

Understandably the state and county highway departments are short on funds to operate a fleet of litter pickup vehicles, but it is difficult to comprehend the reluctance to post the secondary roads and to redistribute the highway patrols.

If New England's delightful back roads can be posted and patrolled, why can't Michigan experiment with this approach before dashing off into an economic attack on a product which is only a part of the larger trash problem?

Something Of Misnomer

In one very important context, the tax reform bill passed by Congress late in this session is no reform at all. After three years of consideration, extensive hearings and some compromise between the House and Senate, the final product further complicated the nation's tax laws rather than simplifying the tax structure.

However one views the individual parts of the bill, and there are so many pieces it is all but impossible to assess the overall effect, the fact is it has immensely complicated an already complex tax situation.

Instead of simplifying the tax code — which was the original intent of reform — by eliminating provisions for special tax considerations where possible, the 1976 bill fills more than 1,000 pages with new special tax situations, many of them added at the last minute and apparently designed for limited use.

What these changes will mean to the average taxpayer won't be known until he sees the resulting changes in tax forms, tax tables and instructions. Already the multitude of changes have been called a boon to CPAs and tax attorneys who will be occupied for years challenging and testing its provisions.

Barometer Affects Human Beings

Modern science doesn't advocate a return to primeval witch doctors and superstition goddesses, but it watches sun spots and studies ways of warding off evil weather spirits.

Farmers have long known that animals become restless just before a storm, but what they may not have realized is that it is a rapidly dropping barometric pressure which causes the restlessness. Barometric pressure and the positive or negative ionization of the atmosphere contribute directly to human temperament, although they are not equally effective on everyone's.

The science of weather effect upon human, and lower animal, behavior has progressed to the point of practical application. Studies of criminal statistics show a high incidence of assaults and suicides during the low barometric pressure days of midsummer.

Can anything be done to alleviate the effect of weather upon human beings? Theoretically, it is possible to create a perfect atmosphere for human existence by controlling the ionization and pressure within a room or building. It isn't practical except for individuals who don't mind living in a sealed igloo.

One For The Road

Michigan Job Service Calling All Employers

Editor,

Labor Day saw the launching of a new state-wide campaign to tell employers about the services available to them through the Michigan State Job Service Offices in the Twin Cities. We also want to remind them we would like to introduce some of the most qualified job applicants ever to appear in our files.

We are aware of employer needs as well as the applicant's needs; it is our intention to bring them together — otherwise they may be like ships in the night passing without recognition.

Perhaps many employers do not know that last year we were fast, modern employment service bringing talented people and good jobs together.

Job applicants and employers are urged to call at either the St. Joseph office of the Fairplain office. Just ask for any job consultant.

FRIEND MOURNS HELEN CARVER

Editor,

In the mail today I received a letter from a friend in Benton Harbor, enclosing your tribute to Helen Carver. The words "do not ask for whom the bell tolls — it tolls for thee" could have been written expressly for her; we are all diminished by her passing.

Helen Carver was a rare soul of beauty and simplicity. Her big heart knew no barriers of race, color or creed. After the untimely death of her first husband, Howard Anthony, I got to know Helen quite well. Over tea we often carried on long conversations which covered almost every aspect of humanity. After her marriage to Joe Carver, her life was enriched by the many interests they shared. I am saddened that she is gone but her memory lingers like a precious fragrance. I read the little book of poems she gave me and I can feel her gracious presence in every line. Sleep sweetly Helen.

READER DISLIKES CARTER'S LANGUAGE

Editor,

In regard to the report on the interview of Jimmy Carter by Playboy Magazine.

I am so tired of being told by a very noisy minority that such language is "everyday" and "realistic" (therefore acceptable). Not where I came from, or among the people I know!

If it must be construed as news, the public would have been better served if it had been placed somewhere other than on the front page.

SLIM PICKENS IN IMMOKALEE

Editor,

I failed to return to Michigan to pick fruit because of the late freezes last spring. It was the first year I've missed in several years. I especially like Lake Michigan and its beaches.

The Winter Haven News Chief ran a long story Friday, Sept. 17, with an Immokalee, Fla., heading, stating "Early migrants find less money, less work." It was a front page story here and stated hundreds have gone back to Immokalee almost 4 weeks too early for crops to be gathered and most all are penniless due to poor crops in Michigan and elsewhere. The story stated the churches have fed all they could at Immokalee and have sent distress pleas to other churches over the state.

If anyone reads this who is planning to return to Immokalee soon please try to wait until at least November 1st. May God be with us all (Similar to the last words in the Bible). I miss people in Michigan and will appreciate hearing from many there. I'll reply to all letters.

His Right To Be Foolish

FAIRFAX, Va. (NEA) — The social service agencies in this community are having a devil of a time trying to be good to Charles Perkins. He is an 88-year-old retired biochemist whom the benevolent officers have decided is incapable of taking care of himself. He disagrees. And herein is a story with a lesson for all.

The service bureaus discovered Perkins a few months ago. He had become estranged from his wife; he had been evicted from his apartment; also, he had this bizarre tendency to simply follow his own lead — even if that meant walking along a highway at 2 a.m. Ergo, the benevolent officers concluded that he needed help.

Trouble is, the old man had different ideas. Thus when he was sent to a home for the aging, he would not stay. And when he was shuffled from shelter to shelter, program to program, he showed little interest and no cooperation. He was not nasty about it, nor for that matter was he ungrateful. He just wanted to do things his way.

Well, the benevolent officers were at a loss. So they regrettably determined that Charles Perkins had some hay missing from his left. And he was committed to a state hospital for the mentally ill.

Many of the recipients — victims of this kind of beneficence — have doubts as to its wisdom, you can be sure. And every now and then someone like Charles Perkins speaks up for the majority. In this case he got himself a court appointed lawyer to fight the commitment. "I don't belong there," Perkins says.

Devotees of democracy will be happy to learn that Mr. Perkins won his case. The benevolent officers said the jury system was "working a tremendous diservice" in the old liner for letting him go. But the men and women sitting in judgment saw it otherwise. After the trial one jury member said the only disservice done to Perkins was by the benevolent officers of the social service agencies.

Hence the lesson of C. Perkins' tale. If he respectfully declines public assistance, it should not be forced on him. The state saw what it considered to be a needy soul, it pulled all of its bureaucratic switches to correct the situation, and this was commendable; it demeaned itself, however, and it damaged the name of charity when it decided it would imprison Mr. Perkins in order to help him. But though God provides worms for birds, he does not presume to push them into their beaks.

Years ago I recall being personally involved in a similar matter. I had written a story about an impoverished Kentuckian, and was so moved by his condition that I teamed with social workers to bring about his upward mobility. The thing was, he didn't want to be motivated. I enrolled him in a welfare program, but he would not cooperate; I set him up in a clean home, but he moved out; then when I arranged for his employment he simply gave up and left the state. And I'm left with the knowledge that I helped chase him away.

I believe the man in Kentucky would have profited from the offered assistance. It is quite clear that Charles Perkins could use help, too. He is among that army of older Americans who do not have enough money, enough friends or enough strength to live out his life to the fullest. And yet he's a big boy. We should treat him so. A paramount right of free people is the right to be foolish.

His Minority Is The Only One

WASHINGTON — The black senior member of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Calisto Tanzi, has been repeatedly suggesting that his agency should give blacks preferential treatment because other minority groups and white women have not suffered discrimination comparable in degree to that borne by blacks.

His attitude has provoked a storm of controversy and violent dissension within the agency, which is supposed to enforce the 1964 civil rights law against job discrimination based not only on race but also sex, religion, color and national origin.

White House officials say privately they are upset by Lewis' views but hope the fuss will blow over. The EEOC has been dogged by bad publicity about mismanagement and internal bias toward black males all year, yet the President is not eager to intervene in a problem with racial overtones in the middle of a campaign.

Lewis, a two-time Nixon appointee, has been campaigning to be named the fifth successive black male chairman of the agency, a post which is now vacant. A White House official aware of the dispute, however, said privately that, "in view of his insensitivity, that idea won't proceed very far."

Lewis' statements have increased pressure on the White House to break the pattern and name either a white woman, a Hispanic or some minority member other than a black to the chairmanship.

Lewis outraged the Mexican-American community several months ago by observing at an agency staff meeting that the civil rights act was not directed at them because they had never had to fight discrimination the way blacks had to do. When shocked persons present reported his remarks, complaints began to pour in.

The White House ordered then-chairman Lowell Perry to rebuke Lewis privately. Lewis then hastily denounced the remarks he edited from the official transcript of the session, erasing the record but not the bad feeling.

Next, Lewis was interviewed by CBS television and said, "From a practical point of view, white women don't need any protection — they can protect themselves. But we (blacks) couldn't. We needed some people to protect us. Because nobody ever told white women or other minorities that they couldn't sit in the front of the bus."

This angered many women viewers, and resulted in a flood of protests to the agency, the White House and Congress. Lewis eventually replied, "at White House prodding, at least one of the protesters, Lee Drury de Cossare, president of the Tampa, Fla., chapter of the National Organization for Women."

In the letter he elaborated on his feeling that white women "do not need the same protection that blacks need."

Having apparently never noticed the "men only" signs in private clubs and, until the new laws, in many restaurants, Lewis said that white women had never "been denied a meal in a restaurant."

Then, with superb illogic, he said: "I wonder if you ever realized that almost every charge that has been filed by or on behalf of charging parties with this commission has been against white men. Do I need to further state that almost 100 per cent of them live with white women. So it goes without saying, that at least there is a direct line of communication, whereas blacks may never get to talk to the head of any firm."

De Cossare replied bluntly: "Mr. Lewis' reasoning that an individual white woman can settle her differences with a white man because that white man lives with another white woman is such offensive logic that it makes one wonder whether the cultural differences between whites and blacks are indeed insurmountable."

The Battle Of The Bottle

In its own sphere, Proposal A is stirring up as much heat and dust as the right to abortion vs. right to life controversy generates.

It is a piece of direct legislation which would ban the non-returnable container for beer and soft drinks.

Beyond taking the non-returnable out of the supermarket it would slap a dime deposit on containers that only one manufacturer can use. The charge would drop to a nickel if more than one producer can use the returnable. As a final backstopper to putting the non-returnable out of commission, the proposal shuts off further utilization of the removable pulltab.

The matter is one which the legislature normally would pass upon, but because the solons at Lansing have ducked the controversy, the proponents for Proposal A have bypassed that bottleneck through the initiative process.

Here is the lineup in this battle for the voters to decide on November 2d.

Pressing for adoption are the ecologically and aesthetically minded who shudder at the undeniable roadside litter splashed against the Michigan landscape. They are joined by the Michigan State Highway Department and most local road commissions whose budgets are strained by the cost of picking up roadside junk. Governor Milliken has endorsed the proposal for both reasons.

Opposing the idea are organized labor and the container manufacturers who claim Proposal A will increase unemployment and boost manufacturing and distribution costs. Store managers and beverage wholesalers fight it because the returnable container greatly adds to an already difficult merchandise handling problem.

Somewhere between those extremes is the consumer who is wearing two hats.

As a customer, he or she prefers the convenience of tossing the non-returnable into the trash can over wrestling empty returnables back to the store for a deposit refund.

up the junk tossed on to the property by some thoughtless slob.

While the non-returnable has raised the litter volume, it is not the complete monster the Proposal A advocates make it out to be and there is a geographical variance in the total trash picture.

Paper is the largest single element in litter. Volumetrically, cans and bottles run a poor second to trash paper of all types.

Further, banning the non-returnable will not eliminate heaving a returnable beer or coke bottle out of a car.

In travelling the highways the comparison between litter on the interstates and the secondary roads is rather startling. It is along the latter where the trash accumulation is heavy to the point of being sickening. The interstates are relatively free from junk.

Several thoughts hint at the reason for the distinction.

Police patrols concentrate on the interstates for speed control and accident prevention. Motorists are aware of this and as a consequence are less inclined to risk being detected throwing refuse out of their vehicles.

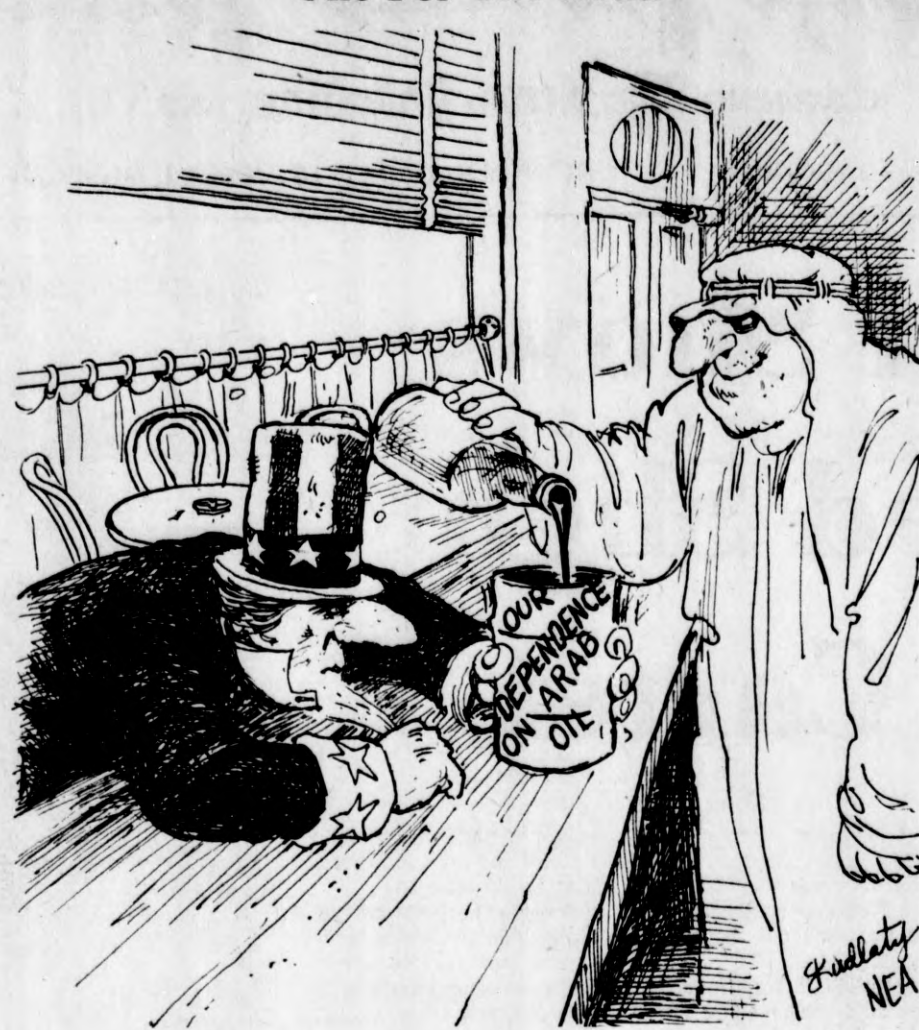

The interstates, at least in Michigan, are more prominently marked with signs calling attention to the state's anti-litter statute.

Finally, we have a hunch the highway department gives more attention in every respect to the interstates than it does to the secondary roads. This would include trash removal.

Understandably the state and county highway departments are short on funds to operate a fleet of litter pickup vehicles, but it is difficult to comprehend the reluctance to post the secondary roads and to redistribute the highway patrols.

If New England's delightful back roads can be posted and patrolled, why can not Michigan experiment with this approach before dashing off into an economic attack on a product which is only a part of the larger trash problem?

Michigan Job Service Calling All Employers

Editor.

Labor Day saw the launching of a new state-wide campaign to tell employers about the services available to them through the Michigan State Job Service Offices in the Twin Cities. We also want to remind them we would like to introduce some of the most qualified job applicants ever to appear in our files.

We are aware of employer needs as well as the applicant's needs, it is our intention to bring them together — otherwise they may be like ships in the night passing without recognition.

Perhaps many employers do not know that last year we were

FRIEND MOURNS HELEN CARVER

Editor.

In the mail today I received a letter from a friend in Benton Harbor, enclosing your tribute to Helen Carver. The words "do not ask for whom the bell tolls — it tolls for thee" could have been written expressly for her; we are all diminished by her passing.

Helen Carver was a rare soul of beauty and simplicity. Her big heart knew no barriers of race, color or creed. After the untimely death of her first husband, Howard Anthony, I got to know Helen quite well. Over tea we often carried on long conversations which covered almost every aspect of humanity.

After her marriage to Joe Carver, her life was enriched by the many interests they shared.

I am saddened that she is gone but her memory lingers like a precious fragrance. I read the little book of poems she gave me and I can feel her gracious presence in every line. Sleep sweetly Helen.

SLIM PICKIN'S IN IMMOKALEE

Editor.

I failed to return to Michigan to pick fruit because of the late freezes last spring. It was the first year I've missed in several years. I especially like Lake Michigan and its beaches.

The Winter Haven News Chief ran a long story Friday, Sept. 17, with an Immokalee, Fla., heading, stating "Early migrants find less money, less work." It was a front page story here and stated hundreds have gone back to Immokalee almost 4 weeks too early for crops to be gathered and most all are penniless due to poor crops in Michigan and elsewhere. The story stated the churches have fed all they could at Immokalee and have sent distress pleas to other churches over the state.

If anyone reads this who is planning to return to Immokalee soon please try to wait until at least November 1st. May God be with us all (Bible) to the last words in the Sinner's prayer.

Something Of Misnomer

In one very important context, the tax reform bill passed by Congress late in this session is no reform at all. After three years of consideration, extensive hearings and some compromise between the House and Senate, the final product further complicated the nation's tax laws rather than simplifying the tax structure.

However one views the individual parts of the bill, and there are so many pieces it is all but impossible to assess the overall effect, the fact is it has immensely complicated an already complex tax situation.

Instead of simplifying the tax code — which was the original intent of reform — by eliminating provisions for special tax considerations where possible, the 1976 bill fills more than 1,000 pages with new special tax situations, many of them added at the last minute and apparently designed for limited use.

What these changes will mean to the average taxpayer won't be known until he sees the resulting changes in tax forms, tax tables and instructions. Already the multitude of changes have been called a boon to CPAs and tax attorneys who will be occupied for years challenging and testing its provisions.

Barometer Affects Human Beings

Modern science doesn't advocate a return to primeval witch doctors and superstition goddesses, but it watches sun spots and studies ways of warding off evil weather spirits.

Farmers have long known that animals become restless just before a storm, but what they may not have realized is that it is a rapidly dropping barometric pressure which causes the restlessness. Barometric pressure and the positive or negative ionization of the atmosphere contribute directly to human temperament, although they are not equally effective on everyone's.

The science of weather effect upon human, and lower animal, behavior has progressed to the point of practical application. Studies of criminal statistics show a high incidence of assaults and suicides during the low barometric pressure days of midsummer.

Can anything be done to alleviate the effect of weather upon human beings? Theoretically, it is possible to create a perfect atmosphere for human existence by controlling the ionization and pressure within a room or building. It isn't practical except for individuals who don't mind living in a sealed igloo.

Berrien Has Debate Too--By 2 Judges

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

While the Ford-Carter debate last night two candidates for the fourth circuit judgeship in Berrien county "debated" local court matters.

Probate Judge Zoe Burkholz and District Judge Ronald Taylor expressed their views on the courts and the justice system during a meeting of the Southwestern Michigan Board of Realtors at Benton Harbor Holiday Inn.

The two non-partisan candidates are seeking the new six-year circuit judge position created last summer by the state legislature. About 130 members and guests listened as the judges aired their positions and then fielded questions from the audience.

Of his candidacy, Taylor noted: "I see it (the circuit bench) as a career and I can perform in that area." He noted that in some areas the circuit judges assume their position because "they're in retirement. The circuit court represents the top of what I'd like to do," he said.

"I'm a candidate because I think we can build a better community," Judge Burkholz said. "The courts belong to the people and should be accountable to them — they will be no better than the people want them to be."

Taylor, who spoke first, stressed a need to change the present court system — from ways to handle cases before they're filed to more information before a criminal is sentenced.

"The courts are enmeshed in a morass of cases the courts can no longer accept," he charged. He suggested alternative means of handling cases be developed, such as arbitration before a civil suit is filed in an attempt to lower the caseload.

He also cited the "need for a professional, full-time court administrator," who should run the courts to free the judges of administration.

On criminal law, Taylor said the drift of many judges has been to the liberal pole, "especially in sentencing." He felt comments are needed from people other than those concerned with the welfare of the defendant in preparation of pre-sentence reports.

"I'd like to bring the victims into the process of the courts," Taylor noted. "We (as judges) need to talk to the victims of crime."

Taylor said the best qualification for a judge is how much time a person has spent in court. "You shouldn't be a trial judge without being a trial lawyer," he said, adding: "I've had plenty of experience at that."

Responding to the same question, Judge Burkholz said the best qualification was experience, and cited her 25 years in the legal profession as both a private attorney and a judge.

On overcrowding of court dockets, Judge Burkholz noted: "Quick certain punishment for criminal wrongdoing would do more to alleviate the overcrowding than all the plea-bargaining."

"That would be the best crime preventative we have," she said, adding that "judges don't want revolving-door justice."

Judge Burkholz said she felt the primary role of a trial judge is to administer justice fairly. She noted that court efficiency increases with professional administrators, which leaves judges more time to judge.

She noted as a judge she is "bound by the rule of law," and said she attempts to apply laws equally to all people.

The judge noted that a judge should "interpret and not make law," saying that "chaos" usually results when judges make law. She also stressed that a judge must "exercise judicial restraint," and not interject oneself into the litigation.

Judge Burkholz also stressed that she is acting in a dual capacity as a probate judge and acting circuit judge, a position she and Probate Judge Ronald Lange were appointed to in 1974 to help the circuit caseload when Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns suffered a heart attack.

She pointed out that while Byrns was off, she and Lange handled all domestic relations cases for the circuit court and they have continued in that capacity for Niles domestic relations cases up to the present.

Asked their feelings on plea-bargaining (reducing a charge to a lesser charge), Taylor said it is "something everyone regrets," but noted there is good and bad plea-bargaining. He said in some cases plea-bargaining is warranted, but to indulge in the practice to simply move cases "is wrong and should be abolished."

Judge Burkholz said she believed the practice was proper in cases involving an overcharge, "but otherwise (people) should be responsible for what they do." Before the candidates' speeches, the realtor board cited member Edward Totzke for his contributions to the real estate profession and gave a campaign contribution to Rep. Bela Kennedy. The amount of the contribution was not disclosed.

Alpena Circuit court Judge Joseph Swallow, a candidate for the Michigan Supreme court, and incumbent Supreme court Judge Lawrence Lindemer will also attend, Mrs. Stockman said.

The public may also attend.

Three Jail Guards Given Promotions

Berrien County Sheriff Forrest (Nick) Jewell yesterday announced the promotion of three county jail guards to sergeants.

Promoted effective Sept. 4 were James Jagers, Michael Frazer and Irvin Palmer. The three sergeants, one for each shift at the jail, fill one vacancy and two newly-created positions at the jail.

Jewell said he asked the Berrien county commission for the new positions so he could "have a command officer on each shift." Previously, the jail had one lieutenant and one sergeant for all three shifts, he said.

Jewell said the three new promotions did not stem from several recent escapes from the jail. "The promotions don't enhance security that much," he said. "They just put a man in charge of each shift."

Palmer, 52, started with the county sheriff's department in January 1969, as a part-time marine deputy. He became a jail guard in January, 1975. He and his wife, Rosalie, live at 1200 East Empire avenue, Benton township, and have five married children.

Frazer, 23, joined the department as a guard in November, 1974. He and his wife, Renee, live at 777 East Napier avenue, Benton township, and have two children.

Berrien Has Debate Too--By 2 Judges

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

While the Ford-Carter debate was focusing on national issues last night two candidates for the fourth circuit judgeship in Berrien county "debated" local court matters.

Probate Judge Zoe Burkholz and District Judge Ronald Taylor expressed their views on the courts and the justice sys-

The two non-partisan candidates are seeking the new six-year circuit judge position created last summer by the state legislature. About 150 members and guests listened as the judges aired their positions and then fielded questions from the audience.

Of his candidacy, Taylor noted: "I see it (the circuit bench) as a career and I can perform in that area." He noted that in some areas the circuit judges assume their position because "they're in retirement. The circuit court represents the top of what I'd like to do," he said.

"I'm a candidate because I think we can build a better

community," Judge Burkholz said. "The courts belong to the people and should be accountable to them — they will be no better than the people want them to be."

Taylor, who spoke first, stressed a need to change the present court system — from ways to handle cases before they're filed to more information before a criminal is sentenced.

"The courts are embroiled in a morass of cases the courts can no longer accept," he charged. He suggested alternative means of handling cases be developed, such as arbitration before a civil suit is filed in an attempt to lower the caseload.

He also cited the "need for a professional, full-time court administrator," who should run the courts to free the judges of administration.

On criminal law, Taylor said the drift of many judges has been to the liberal pole, "especially in sentencing." He felt comments are needed from people other than those concerned with the welfare of the defendant in preparation of pre-sentence reports.

"I'd like to bring the victims into the process of the courts," Taylor noted. "We (as judges) need to talk to the victims of crime."

Taylor said the best qualification for a judge is how much time a person has spent in court. "You shouldn't be a trial judge without being a trial lawyer," he said, adding: "I've had plenty of experience at that."

Responding to the same question, Judge Burkholz said the best qualification was experience, and cited her 25 years in the legal profession as both a private attorney and a judge.

On overcrowding of court dockets, Judge Burkholz noted: "Quick certain punishment for criminal wrongdoing would do more to alleviate the overcrowding than all the plea-bargaining."

"That would be the best crime preventative we have," she said, adding that "judges don't want revolving-door justice."

Judge Burkholz said she felt the primary role of a trial judge is to administer justice fairly. She noted that court efficiency increases with professional administrators, which leaves judges more time to judge.

She noted as a judge she is "bound by the role of law," and said she attempts to apply laws equally to all people.

The judge noted that a judge should "interpret and not make law," saying that "chaos" usually results when judges make law. She also stressed that a judge must "exercise judicial restraint" and not interject oneself into the litigation.

Judge Burkholz also stressed that she is acting in a dual capacity as a probate judge and acting circuit judge, a position she and Probate Judge Ronald Lange were appointed to in 1974 to help the circuit caseload when Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns suffered a heart attack.

She pointed out that while Byrns was off, she and Lange handled all domestic relations cases for the circuit court and they have continued in that capacity for Niles domestic relations cases up to the present.

Asked their feelings on plea-bargaining (reducing a charge to a lesser charge), Taylor said it is "something everyone regrets," but noted there is good and bad plea-bargaining. He said in some cases plea-bargaining is warranted, but to indulge in the practice to simply move cases "is wrong and should be abolished."

Judge Burkholz said she believed the practice was proper in cases involving an overcharge, "but otherwise (people) should be responsible for what they do." Before the candidates' speeches, the realtor board cited member Edward Totzke for his contributions to the real estate profession and gave a campaign contribution to Rep. Bela Kennedy. The amount of the contribution was not disclosed.

Three Jail Guards Given Promotions

Berrien County Sheriff Forrest (Nick) Jewell yesterday announced the promotion of three county jail guards to sergeants.

Promoted effective Sept. 4 were James Jagers, Michael Frazer and Irvin Palmer. The three sergeants, one for each shift at the jail, fill one vacancy and two newly-created positions at the jail.

Jewell said he asked the Berrien county commission for the new positions so he could "have a command officer on each shift." Previously, the jail had one lieutenant and one sergeant for all three shifts, he said.

Jewell said the three new promotions did not stem from several recent escapes from the jail. "The promotions don't enhance security that much," he said. "They just put a man in charge of each shift."

Palmer, 52, started with the county sheriff's department in January 1969, as a part-time marine deputy. He became a jail guard in January, 1975. He and his wife, Rosalie, live at 1200 East Empire avenue, Benton township, and have five married children.

Frazer, 23, joined the department as a guard in November, 1974. He and his wife, Renee, live at 777 East Napier avenue, Benton township, and have two children.

The local YWCA convention committee which was headed by Mrs. John Ashworth, made its recommendations based upon actions taken at the National YWCA Triennial Convention held last June at Notre Dame university.

The recommendations accepted are:

- To support services for battered women that will provide crisis intervention, emergency housing, legal, dental, medical and psychological assistance, child care, economic independence and physical safety.
- To support services for incarcerated women.
- To provide women with tools necessary to be firm in the assertion of their human rights.

tion is being prepared by the Y's Lenses and the Southwestern Michigan Writers club, both YWCA organizations. There will be two presentations made, one 25 to 30 minutes in length and one three minutes long.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Hates Himself In Morning

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 24-year-old guy who has had a crazy sex problem for the last couple of years. I get turned on by heavy-set girls. I mean the fatter they are the better I like them.

I'm on the lean side and consider myself normal in every way except this one. I know there must be something wrong with me because I feel disgusted with myself the next morning and never want to see those fat girls again. Have you ever heard of this before? — H.J. Kid

Dear H.J.: Yes, I have, and I can tell you there is no explanation for what turns people on.

A good therapist can help you get to the root of your problem and solve it. And it is a problem if you hate yourself in the morning.

Try Icy Silence

Dear Ann Landers: After ten years of marriage my husband and I agreed we were grossly mismatched. We parted on good terms, each wishing the other well. After talking to myself for three days I decided to give my husband custody of our five-year-old son. The boy adores his dad and I felt he needed a male's influence in his formative years.

The divorce and custody arrangements are working out beautifully. My ex-husband and I get along much better than we did when we were married. The boy is very happy. He loves us both and I see him often.

The problem is not with us, it's the rest of the world. If one more friend or relative asks me, "How could you give your son up?" I think I'll scream.

Another question, "What are you going to do now?" It so happens that I am O.K. financially and don't have to "do" anything.

I consider such questions an invasion of my privacy. Please help me think of a snappy comeback that will jar their bicusps. — Tongue-Tied

Dear T.T.: Why do you feel the need to respond to clods who ask run-of-the-mill-type questions? A blank stare, feigned deafness or icy silence are what the bores deserve. Try one — or all three — and put them on the defensive where they belong.

Deviation

Dear Ann Landers: I think you write a pretty fair column but sometimes you contradict yourself. For example:

Not long ago you said it was perfectly normal for a girl to have fantasies about lovers. (She daydreamed a lot about Dustin Hoffman.) The same week you condemned a man because he enjoyed dressing up like a woman, putting on a wig, lipstick, jewelry and so on. You called him "sick."

Why do you consider a man "sick" because he enjoys fantasies, but a woman who lets her

ANN LANDERS

Imagination wander you consider "normal"? Answer in print — if you can. — Angel Camp, Calif.

Dr. Lester Coleman

Our 17-year-old daughter has a definite unpleasant body odor. Her friends notice it and she is becoming more and more embarrassed and isolated. Her bathing habits seem to be good. She uses underarm lotions and sprays, but none seems to be effective. Could there be some physical condition that causes this? Where can we go for help? — Mrs. E.K., W. Va.

Dear Mrs. K.: There are no "odor specialists" to whose help I can refer you. There are a very few physical disorders responsible for such an unpleasant body odor.

If a physical condition does exist, it could be traced by your own doctor in your own community.

A group of apocrine glands are responsible for normal, healthy perspiration. Some bacteria seem to flourish in the secretion of these glands and can produce a bad odor.

There seems to be some advantage in controlling this by shaving the underarm hair. American women do this almost routinely. Men, too, seem to benefit by cutting their underarm hair shorter.

Despite the fact that your daughter "seems" to bathe frequently, more consideration should be given to the possibility that her personal hygiene is not entirely satisfactory.

Even with more rigid control it must be remembered that odors have a way of lingering in clothes, causing odors long after proper hygiene has been established.

Dear Angel: Correction, please. I comment, evaluate, respond to questions and offer opinions, but I don't "condemn."

Fantasies remain in the head, and as Robert Louis Stevenson said, "We all have thoughts that would shame hell." But a male who dresses like a female is doing more than fantasizing, he is acting out his desires. And this particular fantasy is clearly aberrant — a deviation from the normal. Get it?

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Green Room Mystique

Erma Bombeck

If there's one aspect of television that intrigues people, it's the Green Room Mystique.

Maybe it's because it's the one room that viewers have never seen. They want to know what goes on in that mysterious hole in the wall that contains the bodies of guests just before they walk out on the Carson, Dinah, Douglas, Merv, or Donohue sets.

Do the sweeties drink? Is it a fun place? Are they nervous? Is it really green?

With every book I've published, I do the green room circuit. (I also sell the book door-to-door with a line of vanilla.) This month, with the publication of my newest, "The Grass Is Always Greener Over the Septic Tank," I will visit more than 70 green rooms. (Setting a new Olympic record of 70 spit-ups.)

I am known as the Willy Loman of the green rooms. Rarely do I meet anyone I know or anyone who knows me. In fact, in one green room, I was the only person there not related to anyone on the show by a former marriage.

I take a seat near the door, and every 15 seconds or so a director will poke his head in the door and inquire, "You okay?" He does this because I am the only person in the room rocking back and forth and humming while sitting in a fetal position.

Occasionally, a man will come in, scrutinize all the faces and come to rest on me. "You! You'd better come to makeup." To which I reply, "I've just returned."

During recent years, I've noted a camaraderie among guests of talk shows, mostly because they have become a rather tight-knit group that tours with some regularity. It is hard to break through. Once, for no reason at all — except I was lonely — I said, "Has anyone heard from Frank lately?" I've never seen booze in a green room (externally, that is), or a magazine, or a picture on the wall, or much food, or children, a newspaper, a phone, a live plant, or a television set that works.

A green room has the personality of a bus station restroom, the capacity of a life raft, the comfort of a Brahma bull in a chute just before the gate opens . . . and you are manning to yourself, "I turn right . . . that's the hand I open mail with . . . and go up one step and kiss the host . . ."

As to why they're called green rooms . . . most of them aren't. They merely reflect the color of the people who occupy them.

Keep Dust Off Lights

Accumulation of dust on fluorescent light tubes cuts down on the amount of light given off.

Therefore, keep the tubes clean by sponging the surfaces with a cloth wrung out of detergent or soap suds. Dry with another clean cloth. Be sure that the lights are turned off and cool before washing.

By Oswald & Jacoby

The unlucky expert had caught us again. With no escape, we agreed to listen to the sad story of one hand.

Here is his tale of woe. "This hand cost me top score last night. The field was in the same four-spade contract I was with one exception. Everyone else made it. I was down one."

"You didn't call for dummy's king of diamonds at trick one, did you?" we asked.

"No, I called for the deuce, but old Jones, who sat East played his ace anyway. If I had called for the king I would have been OK anyway, Jones had a card out to lead back and suddenly asked what the king was still doing in dummy. Then he put that card back and placed the queen of hearts on the table. Three quick heart tricks cooked my goose."

The hand is rather interesting in that some good player in the East seat might deliberately play the ace of diamonds at trick one. The theory being that South would have played dummy's king, if he held two diamonds. A trifle far-fetched, but experts do all sorts of unusual things and sometimes they work.

Ask the Jacobys

A Rhode Island reader writes:

"The bidding has gone one spade — two spades — four spades. What do you lead from with xxxx ♠ Q10xx ♣ Kxx ♣ Kxx? Our first choice is a low trump. Our second choice the fourth-best heart. Neither of these leads may be right, but if you always made the right lead you would never lose.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Occasionally, some drugs and combination of drugs may be responsible for embarrassing body odors.

How does one protect a newborn child from colds? I catch colds frequently and worry that I will give my baby my cold. — Mrs. C.S., Ore.

Dear Mrs. S.: It is not always possible for a mother to remove herself from a child's presence. A mask worn over the nose and mouth is moderate protection.

A better way of avoiding transmitting colds to infants and children is not to talk to them or coo over them and spread droplets of infected saliva in their direction.

Infants are harder than you suspect. You must not live in terror that your baby will catch cold.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... Don't underestimate the importance of a "sprain" or "strain" of the ankle. If swelling and pain persist, have the ankle X-rayed to be sure that a fracture does not exist.

Keep Dust Off Lights

Ford Strike Talks Enter Crucial Stage

By OWEN ULMAN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Bargaining to end the 18-day strike against Ford Motor Co. entered a crucial stage today after a top union official declared the two sides "are getting a hell of a lot closer."

Ford officials also reported progress in fashioning the three-year contract that will set a pattern for 700,000 U.S. auto workers. It was the first word of movement in the auto talks since the strike sent 170,000 Ford workers onto picket lines in 22 states.

Ken Bannan, the United Auto Workers vice president who voiced Thursday's optimistic note, added: "It's moving now." UAW President Leonard Woodcock said, "Things are moving on the right track."

Negotiators worked at the main table in Thursday's discussion of non-economic issues. Bargainers "are progressing through some very important non-economic issues that must be resolved for a settlement to be reached," a Ford spokesman said. There was no indication when round-the-clock talks would begin, the traditional sign that a settlement is near.

Meanwhile, Ford reported mid-September car sales were the company's third best for the period in history, but a company analyst said the strike probably lost Ford several thousand car sales to people who "may have assumed we don't have any cars."

Industry analysts say the strike will not significantly hurt Ford car sales for at least two more weeks.

Industrywide, domestic car sales were up 8 per cent from the same period in 1975, the strongest mid-September performance since 1971.

Total domestic sales in the period were 184,201 in eight days for daily rate of 23,025. Chrysler said sales were up 15 per cent from a year ago and General Motors reported a 5 per cent improvement. American Motors, still in a slump, reported a 40 per cent drop.

Ford's daily car sales from Sept. 11-20 were up 11 per cent from a year ago. The firm's dealers have 630,000 new cars in stock.

Sources at Ford headquarters where bargainers met Thursday said the two sides began narrowing the contract gap late Wednesday on a key union demand for increased job security and restrictions on layoffs.

Sources said there has been no important accord on the major economic disputes which triggered the nationwide walkout Sept. 15.

The sources have said they expect both sides to modify their economic positions this week.

The sources also have said that even with a shift in positions it could be several more days before a settlement could be fashioned.

Bannon Was Edgy

DETROIT (AP) — Police Cmdr. James Bannon appeared before the City Council Thursday amid reports that Mayor Coleman Young planned to appoint him to the department's No. 2 post.

That post was vacated when Executive Deputy Chief Frank A. Blount went on indefinite education leave.

Blount is reportedly the target of a federal probe centering on alleged police involvement in narcotics trafficking.

Bannon was edgy during his appearance before the city council to discuss routine police matters and when Councilman

Economic issues dividing the two sides include wages, health care, and supplemental unemployment benefits, pensions and a union demand for additional paid days off each year to create new jobs.

The strike has closed 102 Ford facilities and brought the U.S. car and truck production to a standstill. The firm estimates it will lose 160,000 vehicles from its September production schedule.

Also, 41,000 hourly Ford workers in Canada have been laid off due to parts shortages. Another 5,600 Ford-Canada workers are due for layoffs next week.

Officials Still Mum On Probe In Kent

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Federal authorities and GOP officials continue to maintain a wall of silence around a probe of Republican party records in Preside Ford's old Congressional district.

The FBI has custody of the records subpoenaed by Watergate Special Prosecutor Charles Ruff. But questions Thursday about where they are now or who is examining them brought only a string of "no comment" replies.

And officials at Kent County Republican headquarters could provide only minimal background on the probe.

Records of the county committee, its finance committee and the 5th District Republican organization were sought under a subpoena dated Aug. 13. But not until the last week of August was the subpoena served upon George TerHorst, staff supervisor for the local GOP, by James Sturgess, agent in charge of the Grand Rapids FBI office.

The subpoena sought party financial records, diaries, minutes of meetings, check-books and calendars of scheduled party events. FBI agents hauled off about 12 cartons of records in a pickup truck.

Party officials said some of the records, which go back to 1964, are illegible. There were damaged several years ago when a broken air conditioner flooded the former GOP offices.

Local party officials kept quiet about the probe, according to county chairman Paul Henry, "because it would put a cloud over everything, whether deserved or not. Ideally, we had hoped there would be no publicity until after the investigation had been completed."

That hope ended Tuesday when the Wall Street Journal disclosed the subpoenas for local party records plus those of the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association.

That union group was the largest single contributor to Ford's 1972 Congressional campaign and had donated equal amounts of $4,000 both to Ford and the local party in 1970.

No records of Ford's campaign committees during his 25 years in the House were sought, according to officials of those committees.

'Debater' Injured

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Chevy Chase will miss this week's "Saturday Night Live" television show because he was injured last week parodying the Ford-Carter debates. In the skit, he was mimicking Ford leading heavily on the podium when the entire unit fell forward to the floor with Chase still clinging tightly to it.

Ford Strike Talks Enter Crucial Stage

By OWEN ULLMAN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Bargaining to end the 10-day strike against Ford Motor Co. entered a crucial stage today after a top union official declared the two sides "are getting a hell of a lot closer."

Ford officials also reported progress in fashioning the three-year contract that will set a pattern for 700,000 U.S. auto workers. It was the first word of movement in the auto talks since the strike sent 170,000 Ford workers onto picket lines in 22 states.

Ken Bannon, the United Auto Workers vice president who voiced Thursday's optimistic note, added: "It's moving now."

UAW President Leonard Woodcock said, "Things are moving on the right track."

Negotiators worked at the main table in Thursday's discussion of non-economic issues. Bargainers "are progressing through some very important non-economic issues that must be resolved for a settlement to be reached," a Ford spokesman said. There was no indication when round-the-clock talks would begin, the traditional sign that a settlement is near.

Meanwhile, Ford reported mid-September car sales were the company's third best for the period in history, but a company analyst said the strike probably lost Ford several thousand car sales to people who "may have assumed we don't have any cars."

Industry analysts say the strike will not significantly hurt Ford car sales for at least two more weeks.

Industrywide, domestic car sales were up 8 per cent from the same period in 1975, the strongest mid-September performance since 1971.

Total domestic sales in the period were 184,201 in eight days for daily rate of 23,025. Chrysler said sales were up 15 per cent from a year ago and General Motors reported a 5 per cent improvement. American Motors, still in a slump, reported a 40 per cent drop.

Ford's daily car sales from Sept. 11-20 were up 11 per cent from a year ago. The firm's dealers have 630,000 new cars in stock.

Sources at Ford headquarters where bargainers met Thursday said the two sides began narrowing the contract gap late Wednesday on a key union demand for increased job security and restrictions on layoffs.

Sources said there has been no important accord on the major economic disputes which triggered the nationwide walkout Sept. 15.

The sources have said they expect both sides to modify their economic positions this week. The sources also have said that even with a shift in positions it could be several more days before a settlement could be fashioned.

Economic issues dividing the two sides include wages, health care, and supplemental unemployment benefits, pensions and a union demand for additional paid days off each year to create new jobs.

The strike has closed 102 Ford facilities and brought its U.S. car and truck production to a standstill. The firm estimates it will lose 160,000 vehicles from its September production schedules.

Also, 44,000 hourly Ford workers in Canada have been laid off due to parts shortages. Another 5,600 Ford-Canada workers are due for layoffs next week.

Bannon was edgy during his appearance before the city council to discuss routine police matters and when Councilman

Speculation focused on a successor to Blount, but also centered on the federal probe into narcotics and the police department.

COAUTHOR ANNE HOBBS PURDY

Pioneer Teacher 'Part Of Alaska'

By KATHLEEN BEASLEY
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Anne Hobbs Purdy rode into Alaska on a pack train nearly a half-century ago, at 19 a teacher anxious for some pioneering. Alaska today, she says, is overdeveloped — "commercialized and exploited to the nth degree" — but she won't move. "I don't want to. This coming summer I will have been there 56 years — I'm part of Alaska."

Mrs. Purdy is the coauthor of a biographical novel, "Tisha: The Story of a Young Teacher in the Alaska Wilderness." It's the product of 11 years of collaboration with author Robert Sprech and details Mrs. Purdy's life in the old mining community that is still home.

Mrs. Purdy lives in Chicken, a near-town close to the Canadian border, about 200 miles east of Fairbanks.

"There are 10 or 12 permanent residents. Where we live there are no conveniences — we have to haul water because it's permafrost and you can't sink a well. We burn wood because there's no electricity. There's no industry, so children move away when they grow up."

She arrived in Chicken from Oregon a cheechako — a greenhorn with no knowledge of the difficulties of the wild. At first, she recalls, she was respected and befriended as the new Teacher — with capital T. "Teachers," she says, "are looked up to there. They are one of the most important people in the community, birthing, burying and marrying the residents."

But that soon changed. "When I showed I cared for a half-breed man, they weren't about to take that. Some even wanted to take my teaching credential away." It wasn't just her love for half-Eskimo Fred Purdy, the man she would marry 18 years later. She also took in two orphaned Indian children and soon had them in class with white children. Her ideas never were accepted by other pioneers, but in the ensuing years she adopted eight more abandoned children. It was her neighbors' contempt, too, that delayed her marriage to Fred Purdy.

"Thinking about that promise (to marry) now, I almost have to smile. Trying to keep it was like making a trip by dog sled in a snowstorm. You know where you want to go, but you can't be sure how long it's going to take or where you'll wind up along the way." Purdy died 10 years ago. "He combined the best of both races — the gaiety and laughter of the Eskimos and the good judgment of the whites. I had something that few people have — he was utterly devoted to me and I loved him completely."

Yale Students Reagan, Udall Agree On Almost Everything

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Reagan and Udall come together tentatively from across a Yale University courtyard.

They eye one another and then shyly shake hands. The photographer pokes his camera from all conceivable angles, and people stare in curiosity. In less than half an hour the two will be sitting together comfortably, amiably chatting and agreeing on almost everything.

Reagan and Udall agreeing? Well, conservative Republican Ronald Reagan and liberal Democrat Morris Udall, both of whom tried this year for the presidency, might not agree on much, but their youngest children, both Yale freshmen, have much more in common, including the belief that Jimmy Carter will win in November.

Ron Reagan and Kate Udall met for the first time at lunch in Yale's Davenport College this month and talked about the campaign, their fathers and politics — a subject in which neither is overwhelmingly interested.

"What did you think about the idea of living in the White House?" the deeply tanned Reagan asked Kate Udall. "I wasn't going to do it."

"The whole idea was fascinating," she responded. "I don't think I'd actually want to live there though. It was Jack Ford who said it's like life in a fishbowl."

Both are the youngest of large families, a trait fairly common in politics. "Large families make good backdrops at press conferences," Reagan said.

Neither has been plagued by the press the way some political children have, but for different reasons.

"This is actually my first interview," the tall, smartly dressed Miss Udall admitted. "When I went to Europe, the name didn't have much recognition."

"Now that I'm back, people are a lot more impressed that I'm his daughter. You get tired of it. It's nice to be anonymous."

Reagan, on the other hand, has been exposed to the potential perils of publicity since he was 8 years old and his father was first elected governor of California.

"Even when we had the house in Sacramento, people would drive by and point at all of us little kids playing football and say: 'Which ones are his?' I'm used to it. It's kind of fun, depending on what mood you're in."

As for the press, he said simply: "If you don't want to be picked on by the press, you don't have to be."

"He's had more exposure than I've had," Miss Udall added. "The Udalls are about five steps down below the Reagans in prominence and money."

The youngest of four children, Reagan took off his spring semester in the senior year of high school to help work on his father's campaign. Although he had planned to write a journal, he wound up as a "go-fer" (errand boy), working from 6:30 a.m. until 3 the next morning every day for months.

like a zombie."

Rarely consulted on political matters, the youngest Reagan is nevertheless an occasional asset to his articulate father, he said.

"Every once in a while when he's typing one of his speeches I'll look over his shoulder and cross something out, tighten it up."

Kate Udall, who is the youngest of six, was much more removed from the campaigning, leaving it to her older brothers and sisters.

"My brother, he's 19, used to speak in high school auditoriums. And they'd ask for his autograph. They love him. My sister was upset because she never got much attention. One time some guy whistled at her and it made her day."

Not only did Kate Udall stay in school during the primary campaigns, she also left for Europe when school was over and missed the Democratic National Convention.

"It was a real bummer. I had a choice of flying back or spending another 1½ months in Europe. I couldn't do both. I'd buy week-old Times to find out what was happening."

KATE UDALL
They find...RON REAGAN
much in common

COAUTHOR ANNE HOBBS PURDY

Pioneer Teacher 'Part Of Alaska'

By KATHLEEN BEASLEY
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Anne Hobbs Purdy rode into Alaska on a pack train nearly a half-century ago, at 19 a teacher anxious for some pioneering. Alaska today, she says, is overdeveloped — "commercialized and exploited to the nth degree" — but she won't move. "I don't want to. This coming summer I will have been there 50 years — I'm part of Alaska."

Mrs. Purdy is the coauthor of a biographical novel, "Tisha: The Story of a Young Teacher in the Alaska Wilderness." It's the product of 11 years of collaboration with author Robert Sprecht and details Mrs. Purdy's life in the old mining community that is still home.

Mrs. Purdy lives in Chicken, a near-town close to the Canadian border, about 200 miles east of Fairbanks.

"There are 10 or 12 permanent residents. Where we live there are no conveniences — we have to haul water because it's permafrost and you can't sink a well. We burn wood because there's no electricity. There's no industry, so children move away when they grow up."

She arrived in Chicken from Oregon a cheechako — a greenhorn with no knowledge of the difficulties of the wild. At first, she recalls, she was respected and befriended as the new Teacher — with capital T. "Teachers," she says, "are looked up to there. They are one of the most important people in the community, birthing, burying and marrying the residents."

But that soon changed. "When I showed I cared for a half-breed man, they weren't about to take that. Some even wanted to take my teaching credential away." It wasn't just her love for half-Eskimo Fred Purdy, the man she would marry 10 years later. She also took in two orphaned Indian children and soon had them in class with white children. Her ideas never were accepted by other pioneers, but in the ensuing years she adopted eight more abandoned children. It was her neighbors' contempt, too, that delayed her marriage to Fred Purdy.

"Thinking about that promise (to marry) now, I almost have to smile. Trying to keep it was like making a trip by dog sled in a snowstorm. You know where you want to go, but you can't be sure how long it's going to take or where you'll wind up along the way." Purdy died 10 years ago. "He combined the best of both races — the gaiety and laughter of the Eskimos and the good judgment of the whites. I had something that few people have — he was utterly devoted to me and I loved him completely."

Yale Students Reagan, Udall Agree On Almost Everything

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Reagan and Udall come together tentatively from across a Yale University courtyard.

They eye one another and then shyly shake hands. The photographer pokes his camera from all conceivable angles, and people stare in curiosity. In less than half an hour the two will be sitting together comfortably, amiably chatting and agreeing on almost everything.

Reagan and Udall agreeing? Well, conservative Republican Ronald Reagan and liberal Democrat Morris Udall, both of whom tried this year for the presidency, might not agree on much, but their youngest children, both Yale freshmen, have much more in common, including the belief that Jimmy Carter will win in November.

Ron Reagan and Kate Udall met for the first time at lunch in Yale's Davenport College this month and talked about the campaign, their fathers and politics — a subject in which neither is overwhelmingly interested.

had planned to write a journal, he wound up as a "go-fer" (errand boy), working from 6:30 a.m. until 3 the next morning every day for months.

"After a day of this you're

like a zombie."

Rarely consulted on political matters, the youngest Reagan is nevertheless an occasional asset to his articulate father, he said.

"Every once in a while when he's typing one of his speeches I'll look over his shoulder and cross something out, tighten it up."

Kate Udall, who is the youngest of six, was much more removed from the campaigning, leaving it to her older brothers and sisters.

"My brother, he's 19, used to speak in high school auditoriums. And they'd ask for his autograph. They love him. My sister was upset because she never got much attention. One time some guy whistled at her and it made her day."

Not only did Kate Udall stay in school during the primary campaigns, she also left for Europe when school was over and missed the Democratic National Convention.

KATE UDALL
They find . . .

RON REAGAN
much in common

"What did you think about the idea of living in the White House?" the deeply tanned Reagan asked Kate Udall. "I wasn't going to do it."

"The whole idea was fascinating," she responded. "I don't think I'd actually want to live there though. It was Jack Ford who said it's like life in a fishbowl."

Both are the youngest of large families, a trait fairly common in politics. "Large families make good backdrops at press conferences," Reagan said.

Neither has been plagued by the press the way some political children have, but for different reasons.

"This is actually my first interview," the tall, smartly dressed Miss Udall admitted. "When I went to Europe, the name didn't have much recognition."

"Now that I'm back, people are a lot more impressed that I'm his daughter. You get tired of it. It's nice to be anonymous."

Reagan, on the other hand, has been exposed to the potential perils of publicity since he was 8 years old and his father was first elected governor of California.

"Even when we had the house in Sacramento, people would drive by and point at all of us little kids playing football and say: 'Which ones are his?' I'm used to it. It's kind of fun, depending on what mood you're in."

As for the press, he said simply: "If you don't want to be picked on by the press, you don't have to be."

"He's had more exposure than I've had," Miss Udall added. "The Udalls are about five steps down below the Reagans in prominence and money."

PSC, Big Utilities Join To Rap Bill On Fuel Adjustment Clause

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Legislation to stop utilities from automatically charging residential customers for the rising cost of fuel was criticized Thursday by Michigan's two largest power companies and the state agency that regulates them.

Detroit Edison and Consumers Power Co. officials warned legislators the financial health of utilities will be endangered unless rising fuel costs continue to be charged to residential customers through the so-called fuel adjustment clause. The bill would require prior public notice or public hearings before the costs are charged to residential ratepayers.

"Attacking the (fuel adjustment) clause is like shooting the milkman when the price of milk goes up," said William Jefferson, Consumers Power's executive director of rates, research and data control.

"There is no way that Detroit Edison could possibly have absorbed these enormous increases in cost and still function as a viable business enterprise," said Ernest Grove, vice president for finance at Detroit Edison.

Carl Kaplan, director of policy for the state Public Service Commission, said the PSC opposes the bill as "unnecessary, inappropriate and adverse to the interests of the ratepayers in the state." He said it would hurt the PSC's ability to "progressively set rates" and would hurt both customers and the companies themselves.

The legislation is sponsored by Rep. Howard Wolpe, D-Kalamazoo, who reacted to the bill's critics by calling fuel adjustment cost increases "a ratepayers' nightmare."

Wolpe headed a special House investigation of the PSC's rate-making procedures.

The legislation would permit utilities to continue to automatically pass through a share of rising fuel costs to industrial and commercial customers.

Wolpe told the House Public Utilities Committee the automatic pass-through for residential customers "fosters utility mismanagement." He said the PSC does not adequately verify that the utilities are limiting the amount of money they collect through fuel adjustments to actual costs incurred.

Grove said the fuel adjustment clause is not designed to increase company earnings, that it provides for price decreases should fuel prices go down, and that the PSC limited the cost pass-through to 90 per

Wetlands Bill Would Protect Million Acres

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — An estimated one million acres of Michigan wildlife marsh and wetlands would be protected from haphazard commercial development under legislation approved Thursday by the House.

"This is the most significant conservation bill we have in Michigan this year," said the measure's co-sponsor, Rep. Thomas Anderson, D-Southgate, chairman of the Conservation, Recreation and Environment Committee.

"Over the years, we have lost vast quantities of wetlands to developments of subdivisions, industrial sites, shopping centers and even trailer parks," he said.

The Senate, meanwhile, passed a bill outlawing deceptive practices in the insurance industry.

The wetlands bill, passed 85-8 and sent to the Senate, would require the Department of Natural Resources to make a wetlands inventory and prepare a plan for wetlands use, management and protection. The plan eventually would require 25 permits and restrictions on the wetlands use. "Wetlands" would include such areas as marshes, bogs, and lands next to lakes, rivers or streams.

Only with DNR-approved permits could developers build such things as docks or boat launching sites, parks or recreational facilities, pipelines or power generating stations, wells, utility transmission lines or driveways.

The DNR would hold public hearings and submit a final plan to the legislature and governor before the law took effect.

The Senate, meanwhile approved a bill prohibiting deceptive practices in the insurance industry. The bill, passed 30-1 and returned to the House for agreement in Senate changes, would also outlaw "redlining" in the home insurance industry.

That provision would prohibit the practice of denying or cancelling property insurance in a particular geographic area, unless statistics are produced showing unusually high fire risks there.

Among the other practices outlawed under the act are expanding a person's coverage without his knowledge and then raising his premium; refusing or limiting insurance on the grounds of race, marital status, age, sex, or place of residence; refusing to insure because the individual was previously denied insurance; and offering different rates to persons because of age, sex, or marital status.

Sen. Inouye Won't Fire His Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Daniel K. Inouye says he has no plans to fire his administrative assistant, who admittedly committed perjury while testifying before a federal grand jury.

Inouye, a Democrat from Hawaii, also denied a report that the Senate Ethics Committee is pressuring him to fire the aide, Henry Giugni.

Giugni told a federal court last July that he had accepted a $5,000 cash campaign contribution in 1973 from Gulf Oil Corp. lobbyist Claude C. Wild Jr. and failed to report it as required by federal law.

Giugni also said he committed perjury when first asked about the contribution by a federal grand jury. Published reports said the Ethics Committee has urged Inouye to dismiss Giugni because the aide's actions allegedly brought discredit to the Senate.

Inouye said he requested a meeting with the committee to discuss the situation. The senator recalled members' questions and statements as being largely sympathetic.

Giugni said he used the contribution money to reimburse Inouye for out-of-pocket campaign expenses without telling the senator where the money came from.

Giugni was not prosecuted because he received immunity after his first appearance before the grand jury. He has since sent Gulf a personal check, paying back the $5,000.

The committee last week decided to drop an inquiry into the receipt of Gulf funds by Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa.

Meter Maid Plays No Favorites

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Meter maid Judy Bittner doesn't play favorites. She recently skipped a ticket on city Parking Director Theodore Perez's municipal car.

Perez is not only her boss but a man who nominated Miss Bittner for a contest to choose the prettiest meter maid in North America. Miss Bittner was chosen one of the dozen prettiest, and her picture was put on a calendar. Perez has the calendar on a wall in his office.

"I suspected it was his," Miss Bittner said. "If a car is in violation, we're supposed to ticket."

Perez paid the ticket, claiming it was worth $2 for its public relations value.

cent in its latest Edison rate decision.

Jefferson said eliminating the pass-through "could seriously affect the utility's capacity to meet the requirements of its customers."

Jefferson warned that the inability to quickly recoup cost increases in fuel could result in brownouts, blackouts, a shutdown in the company's construction program and a reduction of jobs in Michigan.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Hugh Anderson, however, said that utilities existed for decades without the clauses, and argued the pass-through is not necessary to their survival. He called on the committee to amend the bill to eliminate the clause for commercial and industrial customers, also.

Committee Chairman Gerrit Hasper, D-Muskegon, declined to predict the fate of the bill, and said the committee would consider it at a later date.

Television Serpico Policeman Without Nightschtick

By JAY SHARMUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — We need another TV cop as much as Jimmy Carter needs a Ford. But NBC tonight offers its new "Serpico" series. It stars David Birney, who used to love Birdget in the old CBS days.
Now bearded, puffing a pipe and wearing funky threads, he plays Frank Serpico, the famed undercover cop who uncovered corruption among New York's finest, causing a movie about his life.
This TV version of him talks softly and carries no schtick. A schtick is a show-biz gimmick, like Kojak's lollipop. Few TV cops fight crime without a nightschtick. Birney should demand one.
A fine actor, he's in an unfine opening show. It's a run-of-the-precinct drama about the brutal beating and $40 robbery of a friend, a kindly old delicatessen owner who plays violin.
The villain, played to a great Southern T by Billy Green Bush, is an ex-con country boy who loves to hear country music when he isn't busy robbing and whupping citizens.
Serpico misses this whip-up. But he knows he's after a mean Midnight Cowboy when a blind man who heard the crime tells him:
"That cowboy went right past me ... those boots, those highbeeled cowboy boots. You know the sound they make."
Serpico sets out to nail the baddie. Meanwhile, the rascal asks another country boy, a prison pal now married and trying to go straight, to join him in a subplot involving a bank heist.
Frank, meanwhile, is out posing as an ex-con country boy. He figures his cowboy would lurk in a country music bar. So he visits such a bar, picks up a guitar and sings. Guess who he meets?

(You can tell the bar is in New York. Frank uses the house guitar without asking permission. Do that in the South, you wind up singing that old country song, "Who Hit Me, Bubba?") You'll know Serpico's hour is up when he fires shots at the villain's getaway van, causing van and villain alike to catch fire. Wish he'd done that to tonight's opening script ...

Saturday night, ABC unveils two new situation comedies, "Holmes and Yoyo" and "Mr. T. and Tina." The veil should be put back.
"Holmes" stars Richard Shull as a dim detective. John Schuk as his human-looking robot partner. The robot can snap a picture with his eyes, push his nose and cause a finished print to come from his shirt pocket. That's what kind of show it is.

"T" stars Pat Morita as a widowed Japanese inventor who moves to Chicago with his two kids, his uncle Matsu and sister-in-law Michi, and hires a "wacky" young governess for his kids.
The governess (Susan Blanchard) gets fired, then rehired Saturday. And everyone is neatly introduced, including a hip young black handyman who answers Mr. T's phone thusly:
"Takahashi's residence, who you calling prease?"
Ah, so. So bad it better improve fast or sayonara.

You can make instant Croque Monsieur by placing cheese on hot toast topped with a slice of ham, then another slice of toast and cheese and broil for five minutes. ... In Nice, they always wash their pots and pans with coffee. ... And in Monte Carlo, they serve an unpared Anjou pear, cored and filled with cream cheese.

Debate Coaches Score Ford Over Carter, 4-1

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Four members of a five-member panel of college debate coaches gave a slight edge to President Ford in his debate with Jimmy Carter. The fifth gave Carter a narrow edge.

The Ford four said they leaned toward him principally because he did a better job of rebutting some of the Democratic nominee's arguments.

The five coaches from around the country scored the nationally televised event for The Associated Press using a point system similar to that used in collegiate debate competition.

Evaluating the candidates for their analysis, reasoning, evidence, organization, refutation and presentation, the coaches voted this way:

Dr. Barbara O'Connor, California State University at Sacramento, 22-19 for Ford.
Dr. Donn Parson, University of Kansas, 24-23 for Ford.
Prof. William Southworth, University of Redlands (Calif.), 27-24 for Ford.

Prof. Melissa Maxey Wade, Emory University, Atlanta, 22-20 for Carter.

In the first 1960 presidential debate, John F. Kennedy was generally perceived as the winner over Richard M. Nixon because of appearance and image. However, none of the five judges Thursday night gave Carter or Ford a point advantage in the presentation category, the ability to create an image of competence and leadership.

The four panelists who thought Ford won particularly gave him an edge on handling the tax and bureaucracy questions.

"Ford pushed it to him on the tax cuts and bureaucracy cuts," said Dr. O'Connor. "Carter has answers on those things but he never gave them."

Southworth particularly gave Ford credit for his remark at the end of the tax discussion that the tax structure objected to by Carter was enacted by a primarily Democratic Congress.

Unger, the most critical of the panelists, said the refutations in general "seemed to be primarily directed to what the candidates hoped their opponents would say, rather than what their opponents did say. Certainly, though, President Ford seemed to be superior at this level of argument."

Parson thought Ford particularly scored with his argument that Carter can't complain both about Ford's vetoes of spending bills and about the budget deficit.

Professor Wade gave Carter the edge on the basis that he was more responsive than the President in more areas, scored well on the inflation-jobs topic, and because Ford often responded on the basis of proposals rather than his record.

The judges all found the candidates somewhat nervous at the outset. Southworth thought Carter "really lacked the enthusiasm and zing he normally has in his delivery. In an area where I thought Carter would dominate, he really didn't."

Unger, who adapted an American Forensic Association ballot form that was used by the panel, was the only judge to award any grades of "poor" on the 1-to-5 point system for each category.

EYES GLUED TO SCREEN: Chicago-area residents reflect these views as they watch the Thursday night debate between Democratic Presidential Candidate Jimmy Carter and President Ford. They watch studio monitors in a Chicago television station. (AP Wirephoto)

U Of M Debate Professor Puts Ford Over Carter, Too

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
A university of Michigan speech professor and director of debate scored last night's Presidential debate thus — Ford, 36; Carter, 22.

C. William Colburn, himself a former Republican city councilman in Ann Arbor, voiced surprise at his findings.

"I had thought Mr. Carter would outscore Mr. Ford in the area of delivery," Colburn said. "That was not the case tonight."

As far as the professor was concerned, Carter never recovered from the "disastrous" opening minutes of the debate. Carter had 14 "vocalized pauses" in his answer to the very first question, he said, and ended up with 40 — about double the number committed by Ford.

A vocalized pause is when someone says "ah" or "er," Colburn explained.

All in all, using a standard debate ballot used in high schools and colleges, Ford won four of six categories, Carter won one, and they tied on the other.

Specifically, Ford was judged the winner in delivery, refutation, reasoning and analysis, while Carter won in evidence. The tie was in organization.

The professor concluded the Democrats "are going to have to do a substantial amount of work to get their candidate back on the track for the next debate."

How's This For Confidence?

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Nobody can accuse state Sen. David Holmes of not having confidence in his party's nominee for the White House. More than four hours before Jimmy Carter was to engage President Ford in the first of their series of crucial debates Thursday, the Detroit Democrat issued a statement praising Carter's performance and said it "settled the central question" of who is more qualified. Holmes, apparently providing his reaction for use after the debate, declared that Carter "clearly demonstrated through precise, direct responses to tough, demanding interviewers he not only is a man of sound judgment, but also stands by his word without fail." The statement, however, was tagged "for immediate release."

Debate Coaches Score Ford Over Carter, 4-1

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Four members of a five-member panel of college debate coaches gave a slight edge to President Ford in his debate with Jimmy Carter. The fifth gave Carter a narrow edge.

The five coaches said they leaned toward him principally because he did a better job of rebutting some of the Democratic nominee's arguments.

The five coaches from around the country scored the nationally televised event for The Associated Press using a point system similar to that used in collegiate debate competition.

Evaluating the candidates for their analysis, reasoning, evidence, organization, refutation and presentation, the coaches voted this way:

Dr. Barbara O'Connor, California State University at Sacramento, 22-19 for Ford.
Dr. Donn Parson, University of Kansas, 24-23 for Ford.
Prof. William Southworth, University of Redlands (Calif.), 27-24 for Ford.
Prof. Melissa Maxcy Wade, Emory University, Atlanta, 22-20 for Carter.

In the first 1960 presidential debate, John F. Kennedy was generally perceived as the winner over Richard M. Nixon because of appearance and image. However, none of the five judges Thursday night gave Carter or Ford a point advantage in the presentation category, the ability to create an image of competence and leadership.

The four panelists who thought Ford won particularly gave him an edge on handling the tax and bureaucracy questions.

"Ford pushed it to him on the tax cuts and bureaucracy cuts," said Dr. O'Connor. "Carter has answers on those things but he never gave them."

Southworth particularly gave Ford credit for his remark at the end of the tax discussion that the tax structure objected to by Carter was enacted by a primarily Democratic Congress.

Unger, the most critical of the panelists, said the refutations in general "seemed to be primarily directed to what the candidates hoped their opponents would say, rather than what their opponents did say. Certainly, though, President Ford seemed to be superior at this level of argument."

Parson thought Ford particularly scored with his argument that Carter can't complain both about Ford's vetoes of spending bills and about the budget deficit. Professor Wade gave Carter the edge on the basis that he was more responsive than the President in more areas, scored well on the inflation-jobs topic, and because Ford often responded on the basis of proposals rather than his record.

The judges all found the candidates somewhat nervous at the outset. Southworth thought Carter "really lacked the enthusiasm and zing he normally has in his delivery. In an area where I thought Carter would dominate, he really didn't."

Of M Debate Professor ts Ford Over Carter, Too

ASSOCIATED PRESS

am Colburn, himself a publican city councilman Arbor, voiced his findings.

thought Mr. Carter score Mr. Ford in the livery," Colburn said. was not the case

As far as the professor was concerned, Carter never recovered from the "disastrous" opening minutes of the debate. Carter had 14 "vocalized pauses" in his answer to the very first question, he said, and ended up with 40 — about double the number committed by Ford.

A vocalized pause is when someone says "ah" or "er," Colburn explained.

All in all, using a standard debate ballot used in high schools and colleges, Ford won four of six categories, Carter won one, and they tied on the other.

Specifically, Ford was judged the winner in delivery, refutation, reasoning and analysis, while Carter won in evidence. The tie was in organization.

The professor concluded the Democrats "are going to have to do a substantial amount of work to get their candidate back on the track for the next debate."

How's This For Confidence?

NSING, Mich. (AP) — Nobody can accuse state Sen. David Holmes of not having conce in his party's nominee for the White House. More than four hours before Jimmy r was to engage President Ford in the first of their series of crucial debates Thursday, Detroit Democrat issued a statement praising Carter's performance and said it "settled the question" of who is more qualified. Holmes, apparently providing his reaction after the debate, declared that Carter "clearly demonstrated through precise, direct nes to tough, demanding interviewers he not only is a man of sound judgment, but also is by his word without fail." The statement, however, was tagged "for immediate se."

NEWS OF THE FARM, ORCHARD AND DAIRY

Covering The Greatest Diversified Fruit Producing Area In America

NATIONALSome Processors Agree To Prices;
Others Arbitrate

The Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association Inc. (MACMA) says most of the frozen apple slice processors and virtually all of the juice processors have agreed to their asking prices.

However, the association says it will enter into arbitration with five large or medium sized sauce processors who have refused to pay their asking prices and have countered with offers that are in some cases $2 lower than the MACMA asking price.

Because of this year's short crop, prices for the processing market are sometimes triple what they were in 1975.

According to Tom Butler, manager of the Michigan Processing Apple Growers, the companies MACMA has now reached agreement with have in the past represented about 70 to 75 per cent of the total processing apple use for the state.

Butler said that MACMA has reached agreement with every slice processor in the state except for Michigan Quality Frozen Foods, which has offered prices per hundred pounds of $6.50 for soft varieties, $7.50 for hard varieties and $8 for Northern Spys.

MACMA has asked per hundred pounds $10 for Northern Spys, $8.75 for hard varieties, $8 for soft varieties and $4 for juice apples. Butler said arbitration proceedings are being set up between the association and the company.

Musselman, Stokely Van Camp, National Fruit Products, Michigan Fruit Canners and Burnette Farms Packing have also refused MACMA asking prices and have countered with offers that average $6.50 for soft and $7 for hard varieties.

The association said it is also setting up arbitration with those companies. A three-man panel, which is made up of one member chosen by the association, one by the company and one that is mutually agreeable to both sides, will make the final decision on which price will be honored. Their decision will be binding for both parties, Butler said.

If the panel decides in favor of the processors, Butler said the agreements that have already been made with other processors will still be binding. There are no specifications for the quantity of purchase in any of these contracts signed to date, however, he added.

When asked if the processors who have already agreed to the MACMA asking prices will pay the higher price if the decision is in favor of the six companies, Butler said he didn't know because the situation has never come up before.

He added, however, that he sees no reason why the companies would renege on the agreements already made.

In 1975 MACMA went into arbitration with the entire apple industry and was granted the MACMA asking price, according to Butler.

MACMA asking prices this year are higher than in other areas of the country but are beginning to be bid up to Michigan's level, Butler said. "I think by the time everything is settled most prices will be comparable to Michigan's," he added.

About 50 per cent of Michigan's processing apples are made into juice, and the other 50 per cent is split up between sauce and frozen slices, according to Butler.

The asking prices for this year's short crop is based on a United States Department of Agriculture estimate of 11.9 million bushels. Last year processors paid $3.25 for Spys, $3 for slicers and $2.25 for sauce apples. The crop was 17.1 million bushels in 1975.

NETTED VINE: A barely visible plastic netting covers the vine of french hybrids on the left to protect the grapes from birds who fancy their sweet taste.

Attract Birds

Starlings and robins seem to have a sweet tooth when it comes to their taste in grapes, or so says Dr. Stanley Howell, who has been doing all he can to prevent the birds from sampling the experimental French hybrids he is growing at the Sodus research farm.

Howell, a Michigan State university horticulturist who is experimenting with some 25 varieties of wine grapes at the Sodus farm, said the birds attack the grapes because of their high sugar content.

Howell said that in recent tests conducted on the hybrid grapes grown at Sodus, all were 20 per cent or higher in sugar content. Normal sugar content for Concord at harvest stage is 16 or 17 per cent.

To prevent the birds from getting their fill of the experimental grapes, Howell has covered his vines with a plastic flexible netting that is available on the commercial market.

Since not many growers in this area have any French hybrids, they haven't been bothered because the birds usually eat only the sweet, hybrid grapes. The Concord grapes grown in the area mature later and are not as sweet, and therefore not as attractive to the birds, Howell said.

In past years the birds have literally ruined some of his experimental grapes until he was forced to take some counter action with the use of the netting.

Though some large growers use electronic birds distress calls to keep the birds away, Howell said because the grapes grown at the Sodus farm hardly cover an acre it wasn't practical to use such a device. Howell decided to use plastic netting, which can be used from year to year if a grower is careful, and it has proved successful.

The netting can be expensive when used on large crops, but for those farmers who are growing hybrids on a small scale or for those home gardeners growing grapes for wine use, the netting may be the solution to the bird problem.

OSHA Field Sanitation Rules
Are 'Irrelevant To Farm Health'

An OSHA proposal that calls for farmers to provide field workers with potable drinking water and toilet facilities within five minutes walking distance has received overwhelmingly negative response.

According to a bulletin in the Employment Safety and Health Guide, of more than 500 letters received by OSHA only 21 favored the proposal.

Those opposed to the field sanitation requirements said it was impractical for large or small farms, too expensive, impossible to enforce, an invasion of privacy and irrelevant to farm health.

OSHA that the distance requirements should be changed to within a quarter of a mile from work in the field, or that transportation should be made available for workers.

North Dakota Representative Robert F. Reimers said the standard was unnecessary because farm hands have always brought their own water and used the open spaces to relieve themselves.

A number of North Dakota farmers and politicians said that although the requirements may be suitable for California growers, it would be impossible for grain farmers in the plain states to comply because the farming areas are just too large.

Maurice S. Reizen, director of the Michigan Department of Health, suggested in a letter to large.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau and the American Seed Trade Association, among others, suggested that hearings be held on the proposal.

Prices Set
For Stanley
Plums

Plum processors have agreed to pay 4 to 4½ cents per pound for Stanley prime type plums, and although the Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association Inc. (MACMA) has asked 6 cents per pound, they have recommended members sell at the prices offered by processors.

Gerber Products Co. and Stokely Van Camp have both agreed to pay 4½ cents per pound while Elk Rapids Packing, Honee Bear Canning, Michigan Fruit Canners, Oxsana Canning and Traverse City Canning have agreed to pay 4 cents, according to Harry Foster, secretary for the Plum Growers Marketing Committee.

Foster said the price was lower than expected because of last year's carryover of canned plums. The state estimate for this year's short crop is 12,000 tons compared with 18,000 tons in 1975.

Without the United States Department of Agriculture's purchase of 332,200 cases of canned purple plums for school lunch and senior citizens' programs, some of the plums would not have been sold, Foster said.

Beachnut in New York announced a price of 7½ cents; Ontario growers received 11.8 cents from processors; and in Oregon the price was 4½ cents.

For the small Damson crop Gerber Products Co. and A.F. Murch Co. have both announced a price of 10 cents per pound. Other companies report they will be paying 8 cents this year. Ontario processors paid 12.75 cents for Damsons this year.

National's Niagara
Crop Looks Light

The National Grape Cooperative Association Inc. has pressed its crop of Niagara grapes for this year, and according to grower predictions the crop is smaller than expected.

Bill Greveling, area manager for member relations for the cooperative (Welch Foods), said Niagaras were pressed Monday and Tuesday and that the first press of Concord began Wednesday.

"The growers have been telling us that the Niagara crop is smaller than they thought," Greveling said, adding, however, that it will be impossible to give a crop prediction on either Niagaras or Concord until the more of the grapes come in for processing.

The cooperative has increased its production of Niagara grapes in the last five years for use in white grape juice. Although Greveling could give no specific figures, the cooperative has contracted with member growers over the past two years to increase their production of Niagara grapes to meet the demand.

"We don't know where the potential is yet for the product but we have contracted to produce more because the product is selling," Greveling added.

Tomato Expert To Talk
At Field Meet Sept. 29

Michigan State university tomato specialist Dr. Hugh Price will discuss processing tomato varieties, the use of theophon, seeding, plant population and the general culture of tomatoes at a field meeting at 3 p.m. Sept. 29.

Price has planted 10 different varieties of tomatoes by direct seeding and will discuss their characteristics and their adaptability to mechanical harvesting. Tomatoes that have been seeded by the plug-mix method of direct seeding will also be discussed.

The meeting will be held at the Roy Prillwitz farm on Pokagon road in Berrien Springs, according to James E. Neibauer, extension agricultural agent.

Study Says It's OK
To Fallcut Alfalfa

Alfalfa may be cut in September and October without harming the plant if wilt-resistant, well-fertilized varieties are used and if two of the three cuttings have come to flower before harvesting, according to a recent study.

Michigan State University research studies conducted by Dr. Milo Tesar in both East Lansing and Monroe county between 1964 and 1976 showed no significant loss in yield the following year after September-October cuttings. Tesar said that root reserves of fall-cut alfalfa become replenished before winter for survival.

This is counter to earlier recommendations when it was believed that a fall cutting would rob the plant of stored nutrients needed for the following year's growth.

Three experiments using Vernal and Saranac alfalfa on a well-drained Conover silt loam soil showed no significant loss in yield per acre the year following the September-October cutting.

In southern Michigan, cutting in September was not harmful since the plants were flowering well after a later July cutting and had adequate reserve stored for the winter.

Fall cutting or green-chopping in September or early October gives livestock producers greater flexibility in harvesting or grazing the last cutting, according to G. Wayne Hothem, Cass county extension director.

For good yields alfalfa should be topdressed with potassium annually.

Dairy Feed
Additive Tested

Dairymen who want to increase milk and fat production in their cows might consider feeding them a tallow supplement, according to T. Randall Wren, a United States Department of Agricultural research scientist.

Cows fed tallow in a recent experiment by Wren and his colleagues produced about 10 per cent more milk and had a 15 per cent higher milk fat yield than cows not fed tallow, according to the results of the experiment conducted at the Beltsville Agricultural Research center, Beltsville, Md.

Mondale Visits State; Says It's Crucial

By PATRICK CONNOLLY
Associated Press Writer

Democratic vice presidential candidate Walter Mondale took his election campaign to the Michigan countryside and campus Thursday, blasting his Republican opponents' record on economic issues.

Between stops at Michigan State University and in Flint, the U.S. Senator from Minnesota visited the small central Michigan community of Durand, where he strolled down flower-bedecked East Main street and struck up conversations with schoolchildren and fellow diners in a local restaurant.

Under sparkling early-autumn skies, Mondale took a brief break from stump speeches and campaign hoopla, but still managed to get in some politicking.

While eating at Herrick's restaurant, Mondale asked people at a nearby table if they could remember a time when there was full employment under a Republican president.

"No," they called back. Mondale answered, "Sometimes you get it, just before an election."

Back on the streets, he spotted a group of youngsters on the steps of the white brick city hall and chided them for being absent from school. When firstgrader Mike Cook replied, "I like school," he got a pat on the head from the candidate. "Michigan will probably be a crucial state in the (November presidential election) vote," Mondale said. "Chances are if we win Michigan, we will win the election."

But it was earlier in the day, at Michigan State University, where Mondale got in his hardest licks against his Republican opponents. Telling a student audience of about 1,000 that "little mercy" should be shown to puffers of hard drugs, he accused the GOP administration of doing little to fight organized drug crime.

Moments later, Mondale told a student interviewer that penalties should be reduced to fines instead of jail sentences for "occasional use of marijuana" but that marijuana use should not be legalized.

In an MSU Student Union ballroom, Mondale spoke briefly then took questions from the audience. He charged, "There is utterly no hope that these Republicans will pursue a civilized economic policy. Mr. Hoover, Mr. Eisenhower, Mr. Nixon and Mr. Ford stink on economic policy."

He also urged votes for Congressman Donald Riegle of Flint, the Democratic candidate for Senate, and Congressman Robert Carr, candidate for reelection in the Lansing area's 8th District.

Mondale was greeted at the student union door by about 50 students, including half a dozen in wheelchairs. The handicapped students said they were demonstrating for easier access to public buildings and public transportation.

Mondale spoke with them for about five minutes, saying he has fought for accessibility to public facilities.

"This university and all institutions around the country should make their facilities... fully available to the handicapped," he said, adding he will continue striving for equal rights for the handicapped.

To Mark Peck, a skeptical 19-year-old junior confined to a wheelchair, Mondale promised his pledge in writing.

After driving by motorcade to Durand, Mondale went on to Flint, Riegle's hometown.

In Flint, he spoke to about 350 United Auto Workers retirees of Buick Local 590. Union officials presented Mondale with a peanut-shaped cake, which he helped cut.

Color's Right But Jimmy 'Won't Like The Number'

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Vice Presidential candidate Walter Mondale got a laugh from the crowd as he jokingly accepted a football jersey with Michigan State University's green and white colors Thursday. Holding the shirt aloft and eyeing the big "No. 1" on front, the second banana to Democratic presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter said, "It's the right color but Jimmy won't like the number."

U.P. Student Wins Top Lottery Prize

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — The top Michigan lottery prize stayed in the Upper Peninsula Thursday night when the Super Play took its "showmobile" to the National Guard Armory.

Joan Liqia, 42, of Ishpeming, said she would use part of her $200,000 winnings to replace the 1968 Mercury she has been driving to class at Northern Michigan University, where she will finish her studies this month to become a legal secretary.

Ms. Liqia is divorced and has three children.

The $25,000 second prize went to 67-year-old William Graves, a retired Detroit policeman living in Warren.

Robert Genord, 44, of Detroit, won $15,000, and $12,500 went to Stanley Hiba Jr., 53, of Dearborn Heights.

Four people won $10,000 each: Ray Weiss, 35, of Frankmouth; Rosemary Conway, 43, of Saginaw; Louis Bertson, 38, of Ann Arbor, and 68-year-old Thomas Nolan of Munising.

The lottery "showmobile" will be at the State Line Supermarket in Niles next Thursday as it continues its six-week road trip, before returning to television Oct. 21 over Detroit's WWJ.

Meanwhile, nearly 10 million tickets were sold during the first week of the Michigan Lottery's new instant game, the lottery bureau announced Thursday.

The bureau said preliminary sales estimates indicate the "Presidents Game" is off to a faster start than any of the three previous instant games.

The bureau said sales are expected to level off, but predicted that all 60 million tickets should be sold within the 10-12 weeks allotted for the game.

Lady Bird Gets Carter Apology

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Jimmy Carter, the Democratic presidential nominee, has apologized to Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson for comments he made about the late president in an interview with Playboy magazine.

Carter, in an interview that will appear in Playboy's November issue, was quoted as saying, "... I don't think I would ever take on the same frame of mind that (former President Richard M.) Nixon or Johnson did — lying, cheating and distorting the truth."

Jody Powell, the candidate's press secretary, said Carter telephoned Lady Bird Johnson on Wednesday "to express his regrets about the story and in particular that implicating that he considered Nixon and Johnson were in the same category."

Powell said Carter was not making excuses for the statement, but apologizing for it.

Mrs. Johnson was in San Antonio on Wednesday to meet Rosalynn Carter, in Texas on a two-day campaign trip for her husband.

Mrs. Johnson and Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe met Mrs. Carter at the airport. Mrs. Johnson made no public comment and neither woman referred to Carter's remarks about Lyndon Johnson.

Debate Poll Shows Ford Gained Most

candidate took Ford to task for what he said was a lack of leadership and blamed the Republican administration for what he said was a variety of economic ills.

The moderator for the debate, sponsored by the League of Women Voters, was Edwin Newman of NBC. The questioners were Frank Reynolds of ABC television, Elizabeth Drew of the New Yorker, and James P. Gannon of the Wall Street Journal.

"The two candidates stood behind chest-high lecterns. During the opening minutes of the confrontation, their voices sounded strained."

Hamilton Jordan, Carter's campaign manager, said later, "I thought Jimmy was a little nervous at first and started a little slow." Jordan added that he thought that later Carter "took command of the debate."

Jordan assessment was as expected as that of White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, who said, "We compared notes on the President's staff and came to the conclusion that he had won — and that he had won ... by a wide margin."

Reynolds asked the opening question, and it was directed to Carter:

"You have said you are committed to a drastic reduction in unemployment. Can you say now, governor, in specific terms, what your first step would be next January, if you are elected, to achieve that?"

"Yes," Carter began. "First of all is to recognize the tremendous economic strength of this country, and putting back to work our people as a top priority. This is an effort that ought to be done primarily by strong leadership in the White House."

Carter went on to say that unless unemployment was reduced, "we'll never have an end to the inflationary spiral, and we'll never have a balanced budget."

He called for tax reform, for incentives to private industry to create jobs and for special programs geared to central cities where unemployment rates are far higher than the national average.

Carter had three minutes for his initial answer and another two minutes to answer a followup question. Then Ford got his first chance to speak in the two minutes allotted for comment after an opponent has answered a question.

"I don't believe that Mr. Carter has been any more specific in this case than he has been in many other instances," said the President, echoing a familiar Republican charge against Carter.

Ford said Democratic jobs programs would add $10 billion to $30 billion each year in additional expenditures.

The second question dealt with taxes and was directed to Ford, who replied that he probably would sign the tax bill recently passed by Congress. This time it was Carter's turn to rebut, and he linked the Republicans to a tax structure he called "a welfare program for the rich."

Carter was asked where he'd find the money to pay for the programs he was promising voters. With reduced unemployment and a steady economic growth, there would be $60 billion in extra money in four years, he said.

Ford questioned whether such a dividend would be found. If it was, he added, "I think the American taxpayer ought to get an additional tax break, a tax reduction of that magnitude."

Later, the subject of taxes came up again and Carter said he wanted to do away with the kind of deductions he said were used by the wealthy but were not available to the average working person. He cited "first-class travel, the $50 martini lunch."

Ford then renewed recent Republican charges that Carter had indicated in an interview with The Associated Press that he planned to ask for a tax increase "on about 50 per cent of the working people of this country." The President also said that the tax laws which Carter claims contain gross inequities were written by Congresses controlled by the Democrats.

Carter repeatedly has said that he has no intention of asking for a tax increase for lower middle-income families. The Democratic candidate has said he only intends to do away with provisions that give extra advantages to high-income families.

One of the most acrimonious exchanges occurred when Ford was asked to comment on the anti-Washington feeling often mentioned during the campaign.

Ford said he thought any anti-Washington feeling "ought to be focused on the Congress. ... I don't think the American people are getting their money's worth from the majority party that runs this Congress. ..."

"They spend too much money on themselves; they have too many employees; there's some question about their morality."

Ford concluded that "I think the American people want a Republican president to check on any excesses that come out of the next Congress."

Carter retorted that "it's not a matter of Republican and Democrat, it's a matter of leadership or no leadership."

He said Ford "quite often puts forward a program just as a public relations stunt and never tries to put it through the Congress by working with the Congress. ... The point is that a president ought to lead this country. Mr. Ford, so far as I know, except for avoiding another Watergate, has not accomplished one single major program for this country."

On government reorganization, Carter said he had drastically consolidated the state government bureaucracy as governor of Georgia and that "it was a tremendous success."

Ford countered that during Carter's four years as governor, state expenditures increased more than 50 per cent and the number of state employees increased by 25 per cent.

The official record shows that during Carter's term as governor of Georgia, the state budget increased from $1.657 billion to $1.657 billion, up 58.5 per cent. The number of state employees rose 24 per cent. Both figures were lower than the increases during the four-year term of Carter's predecessor, Lester Maddox.

A principal theme of the Carter presidential campaign has been a promise to cut sharply the number of federal agencies.

Both men restated their positions on amnesty and on Ford's pardon of Richard M. Nixon.

Ford said he opposes across-the-board pardon of draft evaders or deserters. He said he pardoned Nixon after Nixon resigned the presidency "because it seemed to me Mr. Nixon had been penalized enough by his resignation in disgrace and the need and necessity for me to concentrate on the problems of the country fully justified the action I took."

Carter said he advocates a pardon for draft resisters. "I think now is a time to heal our country," he said.

On energy and particularly nuclear power, Carter said he favored development of coal resources and declared that "we should use atomic energy only as a last resort with the strictest possible safety precautions." He also said he would favor mandatory conservation measures.

Ford said he had submitted to Congress "the first comprehensive energy conservation program." The President said his administration has increased research and development to "insure that our nuclear power plants are safer, that they are more efficient and that we have adequate safeguards."

Asked about his vetoes of jobs bills passed by Congress, Ford said his 56 vetoes of various measures had saved $8 billion and thereby relieved inflationary pressures which "would help to destroy jobs in the private sector."

Carter said unemployment under the Ford administration was the highest since the depression of the 1930's. "This affects human beings and his insensitivity in providing these people a chance to work has made this a welfare administration not a work administration."

Government unemployment figures for August showed 7.9 per cent of the work force was jobless, or nearly eight million people.

State Police Claim Solution Of 7 Stickups

A state police detective at the Benton Harbor post claimed seven armed robberies in a three-county area over the past four months have been cleared up. He said one man has been arrested and warrants are being sought for two others.

Det. Sgt. Jerry Clark said Kevin Bailey, 27, of 5901 Bailey road, Eau Claire, was booked early today at the Berrien county jail on an open charge of armed robbery.

Clark said the investigation linking the robberies began during an unrelated investigation of a burglary at a Bridgman jewelry store.

Five of the seven robberies were reported in Berrien county, one occurred in Cass county and the other in Van Buren county.

In Berrien the robberies occurred at the Bass Island bar, Pipestone township, June 28; the Pizza Hut restaurant, St. Joseph township, Aug. 9; Mainville's Supply store, Bainbridge township, Sept. 7; the Oak Dairy store, Niles, July 6; and Burkhardt's Standard service station, Sept. 9.

In Van Buren a robbery occurred at PJ's Pizza, Sister Lakes, and last Monday in Cass county the Totem Fruit stand in Dowagiac was robbed.

Clark said bandits took a total of between $7,000 and $8,000, none of which has been recovered, in the seven robberies.

In both the holdups at the Pizza Hut and Burkhardt's service station, employees were locked in car trunks by bandits. No one was hurt in any of the robberies.

FBI Investigations Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has drastically cut back its domestic security investigations, but some members of the Senate intelligence committee seem doubtful that the reduction represents a change in policy rather than just a temporary reaction to public criticism. Testifying before the committee on Wednesday, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley disclosed figures showing there has been a 97 per cent cut in the number of domestic security investigations in the last three years. Kelley attributed the drop from 21,414 in July 1973 to the current 628 to a changing social climate, particularly the end of protests against the Vietnam war and to internal reorganization.

Authority To Eject

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies have the authority to eject "unwanted and disruptive visitors" from public schools and school grounds, says the state attorney general. "County law enforcement officers may remove unauthorized visitors from the buildings or grounds of a school district," Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said Thursday. Sheriffs, Kelley said, have duties to perform "all reasonable services within the jurisdiction of their offices for which the county may be liable." He said those duties include preserving the peace and arresting and detaining people charged with committing a public offense.

results from the program were limited, considering the $650,000 in federal funds spent for the program in three years (including the 1976-77 grant).

The Rev. Donald Adkins, program director, got a clean bill of health from the OIC board.

The OIC board, which met Tuesday with the Berrien County Manpower Planning Council (the CETA board), reported that in the future it "will have to take a more active part in the total OIC program."

Burden said he considers the report of the investigation confidential and would not release his copy.

Burden added that job-relations counselor at OIC, whom he identified as Darlene Kiel, has also been terminated. The reason for the woman's firing was that her position was labled excess and abolished, he said.

Burden said that the directors also plan to "upgrade" the instructors that work at OIC.

He said that CETA, which provides all funding for OIC, "is quite pleased with the investigation and we feel it was thorough and in-depth."

All members of the OIC board of directors took part in the investigation, said Burden. Executive board members are:

Chairman Kenneth Morris, of the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.; Vice Chairman Ralph Crenshaw, of the Bendix Corp.; Treasurer Robert Small, of Inter-City Bank; Secretary Rodger Bittner, St. Joseph attorney.

Other board members are Mrs. Annabelle Bankston; Maurice Bishop; John Bishop; Rev. Atkins; Rev. T.N. Wilkins; Howard Edwards; Clyde Remon; Alan Winslow; Franklin Smith and Martin Lane.

Debate Poll Shows Ford Gained Most

andidate took Ford to task for at he said was a lack of dership and blamed the ublican administration for at he said was a variety of omic ills.

he moderator for the debate, nsored by the League of en Voters, was Edwin aman of NBC. The ques- ers were Frank Reynolds of C television, Elizabeth Drew he New Yorker, and James Gannon of the Wall Street urnal.

he two candidates stood ind chest-high lecterns. ring the opening minutes of nfrontation, their voices nded strained.

amilton Jordan, Carter's n-paign manager, said later, ough Jimmy was a little ous at first and started a le slow." Jordan added that ough that later Carter ok command of the debate." rdan assessment was as- ected as that of White ouse ss Secretary Ron Nessen, o said, "We compared notes e President's staff and e to the conclusion that he d won — and that he had won y a wide margin."

eynolds asked the opening estion, and it was directed to rter:

"You have said you are com- itted to a drastic reduction in eployment. Can you say w, governor, in specific ms, what your first step uld be next January, if you e elected, to achieve that?"

"Yes," Carter began. "First all is to recognize the mndous economic strength this country, and putting ck to work of our people as a o priority. This is an effort ough to be done primarily strong leadership in the ite House."

Carter went on to say that less unemployment was luced "we'll never have an d to the inflationary spiral, d we'll never have a balanced dget."

He called for tax reform, for entives to private industry to ate jobs and for special rgrams geared to central cis where unemployment rates e far higher than the national erage.

Carter had three minutes for s initial answer and another o minutes to answer a lowup question. Then Ford t his first chance to speak in e two minutes allotted for mment after an opponent has sswered a question.

"I don't believe that Mr. rter has been any more ecific in this case than he has en in many other instances," id the President, echoing a miliar Republican charge ainst Carter.

Ford said Democratic jobs rgrams would add $10 billion $30 billion each year in ad- ditional expenditures.

The second question dealt h taxes and was directed to rd, who replied that he obably would sign the tax bill ecently passed by Congress. s time it was Carter's turn to ut, and he linked the epublicans to a tax structure e called "a welfare program e rich."

Carter was asked where he'd d the money to pay for the rgrams he was promising ters. With reduced eployment and a steady onomic growth, there would e $60 billion in extra money in ur years, he said.

Ford questioned whether such dividend would be found. If it as, he added, "I think the merican taxpayer ought to get d additional tax break, a ge- duction of that magnitude."

Later, the subject of taxes e up again and Carter said e wanted to do away with the nd of deductions he said were ed by the wealthy but were t available to the average orking person. He cited 'first-class travel, the $50 mari- n lunch."

Ford then renewed recent epublican charges that Carter d indicated in an interview h The Associated Press that e planned to ask for a tax ecrease "on about 50 per cent e working people of this ntry." The President also id that the taxlaws which rter claims contain gross egresses were written by ngresses controlled by the emocrats.

Carter repeatedly has said at he has no intention of king for a tax increase for ver middle-income families. e Democratic candidate has d he only intends to do away h provisions that give extra vantages to high-income families.

One of the most acrimonious exchanges occurred when Ford was asked to comment on the anti-Washington feeling often mentioned during the campaign.

Ford said he thought any anti-Washington feeling "ought to be focused on the Congress. ... I don't think the American people are getting their money's worth from the majority party that runs this Congress. ...

"They spend too much money on themselves; they have too many employees; there's some question about their morality."

Ford concluded that "I think the American people want a Republican president to check on any excesses that come out of the next Congress."

Carter retorted that "it's not a matter of Republican and Democrat, it's a matter of leadership or no leadership."

He said Ford "quite often puts forward a program just as a public relations stunt and never tries to put it through the Congress by working with the Congress. ... The point is that a president ought to lead this country. Mr. Ford, so far as I know, except for avoiding another Watergate, has not accomplished one single major program for this country."

On government reorganiza- tion, Carter said he had drastically consolidated the state government bureaucracy as governor of Georgia and that "it was a tremendous success."

Ford countered that during Carter's four years as governor, state expenditures increased more than 50 per cent and the number of state employees increased by 25 per cent.

The official record shows that during Carter's term as governor of Georgia, the state budget increased from $1,057 billion to $1,657 billion, up 58.5 per cent. The number of state employees rose 24 per cent. Both figures were lower than the increases during the four-year term of Carter's predecessor, Lester Maddox.

A principal theme of the Carter presidential campaign has been a promise to cut sharply the number of federal agencies.

Both men restated their positions on amnesty and on Ford's pardon of Richard M. Nixon.

Ford said he opposes across-the-board pardon of draft evaders or deserters. He said he pardoned Nixon after Nixon resigned the presidency "because it seemed to me Mr. Nixon had been penalized enough by his resignation in disgrace and the need and necessity for me to concentrate on the problems of the country fully justified the action I took."

Carter said he advocates a pardon for draft resisters. "I think now is a time to heal our country," he said.

On energy and particularly nuclear power, Carter said he favored development of coal resources and declared that "we should use atomic energy only as a last resort with the strictest possible safety precautions." He also said he would favor mandatory conservation measures.

Ford said he had submitted to Congress "the first comprehensive energy conservation program." The President said his administration has increased research and development to "insure that our nuclear power plants are safer, that they are more efficient and that we have adequate safeguards."

Asked about his vetoes of jobs bills passed by Congress, Ford said his 56 vetoes of various measures had saved $9 billion and thereby relieved inflationary pressures which "would help to destroy jobs in the private sector."

Carter said unemployment under the Ford administration was the highest since the depression of the 1930's. "This affects human beings and his insensitivity in providing these people a chance to work has made this a welfare administration not a work administration."

Government unemployment figures for August showed 7.9 per cent of the work force was jobless, or nearly eight million people.

United Conservation clubs.

Allegan county Board Chairman Jerry Lohman said if the $1 million camp is built in the 45,000-acre reserve, it will "make the county less attractive in that area."

Dennis Sijalkowski, a field representative with the Michigan United Conservation clubs, termed the proposal "offensive," and promised a club inquiry.

The two men said they had been given no fore-warning that the state Department of Corrections was considering the game area for a prison camp.

The sprawling state game area is northwest of Allegan city and occupies most of Valley township and parts of Heath, Monterey, Manlius, Clyde,
Ganges and Lee townships.

Created in 1964 by combining the Allegan State Forest, the Swan Creek Wildlife Experiment station and the Fennville State Game area, the game area drew an estimated 115,965 visitors between April and October of 1975, according to Charles Freiley, wildlife-biologist in charge.

Earlier yesterday, a spokesman for the corrections department, said the game area camp it has proposed would be a replacement for another minimum security facility, Camp Hoxie, near Cadillac.

Gail Light, a spokesman for corrections department director Perry Johnson, said the camp is now on federal land, and National Park Service officials "have indicated" that a license for the prison facility will not be renewed. The park service is seeking the area as a campground site.

Camp Hoxie now has about 50 or 60 inmates, but had about 115 before a fire destroyed a barracks earlier this year.
There were 16 escapes from the camp in 1975, she said.

The new camp-without-walls would house about 100 inmates.
A specific site within the game area has not been selected yet.
The department of corrections will seek assistance from the Department of Natural Resources in settling on a site, the spokesman said.

Among reasons she listed for locating the camp in Allegan county were:

—It would be a convenience for prisoner families living in southwestern Michigan.

—Possibilities of work-release programs would be better because there are presumably more jobs in the populated Grand Rapids-Kalamazoo area.

Lohman, the county board chairman, said he is miffed that the county board was not contacted about state plans to put the camp in the county.

He said the proposal will be raised at the county's next board meeting, but added: "I don't think the county can do anything about it."

Bridgman Study Raises Question On Apartments

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

BRIDGMAN — A study on apartments in this city has found that over one-third of the population is now living in multiple-family units and raises a question of whether Bridgman,
"can absorb additional multiple family housing."

Thomas Sinn and Associates, St.
Joseph, at the request of the city planning commission and presented to the commission last night.

The commission tabled discussion of the five-page study to give members a chance to study it.

Gene Terano, planning commission chairman, said the commission requested the study after receiving a recent apartment development proposal from Nathan Downey, Benton Harbor real estate agent.

The proposed development would be located off Baldwin road, south of the Toth subdivision. Plans call for construction of three apartment buildings, containing 16 one and two-bedroom apartments each.

The study found that the city can now house 880 to 900 people in apartments. "...with a population of over 2,000 residents, this means that over one-third of all residents are presently living in multiple family housing," the study said.

The report not only questioned whether the city could absorb more such units but noted "A large proportion of multiple family dwellings to single family dwellings ordinarily characterizes a more transient population." It said city officials should "...determine if the city will remain with a fairly stable population or if it is desirable to seek a 'bedroom' community image."

In his introduction to the report, Sinn noted that the study was prepared to give the city planning unit and the city commission information about multiple family dwellings in the city, and not to offer a recommendation on whether a specific apartment development should be built.

The study also found an apartment development on Baldwin road will place an additional burden on Baldwin road traffic; suggested an apartment development might be better located near existing units in the Red Arrow highway area; that water and sewer lines to the site appear adequate, and that should the proposal be approved, several requirements should be requested of the developer to safeguard aesthetics, density, parking and interior streets.

In other areas, the planning commission forwarded a request for a permit by Manley Bros. Inc., Chesterton, Ind., to mine sand in a three-acre area on the west side of Red Arrow highway to the city commission with a favorable recommendation. No one attended a public hearing, set on the mining request. The area is located between Red Arrow and I-94, north of Lake street.

Terano said he would contact Wesley Thorn, production manager of Martin Marietta Aggregates, to discuss a letter seeking an extension of a permit to haul sand from the firm's Bridgman south site to its Bridgman north Plant, over Red Arrow highway. The letter did not indicate how long the firm wanted the permit to be extended, Terano said.

The firm's Bridgman south site is located in the southern part of the city, just north of Church Camp road on the west side of Red Arrow. The north plant is located at the north edge of the city, mostly in Lake township.

Commissioners expressed concern about damage to Red Arrow and also expressed concern over the future of the firm's plans to build a $7 million sand-processing plant and loading system at the south site.

Mayor Ronald Gelesko told the commission that he understands Martin Marietta officials are now not sure the plant, discussed at the city commission's Aug. 18 meeting, will be built after all.

Thorn, contacted this morning by this newspaper, said the proposal to build a new plant is still under study by company engineers and has not yet been acted on by the board of directors. The new plant is one of several expansion proposals under study, he said.

Last month, Arnold Alekna, vice president of operations, said it was hoped construction could begin on the $7 million plant sometime in 1977.

Opposition Surfaces To Prison Camp In Allegan Game Area

STEVE McQUOWN
Assistant State Editor
BENTON HARBOR — A proposal to build a minimum security prison camp in the Allegan

State Game area by 1979 has brought sharp reactions from a county official and from a spokesman for the Michigan
United Conservation clubs.

Judge Seeks Rehearing For Suspended Spartans

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—Although he admits it is outside his jurisdiction, a federal judge is trying to get the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) to reconsider suspensions imposed on two Michigan State University football starters.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Noel Fox said Thursday he had asked for the rehearing for defensive back Joe Hunt and tight end Michael Cobb.

The judge's unusual proposal was made in a conference call involving lawyers for the NCAA, Michigan State, Cobb and Hunt.

"I'm exceeding my jurisdiction but I thought it was worthwhile," Fox said of his efforts. "There's nothing in the law to prevent my expressing my opinions," he added.

The trigger for the judge's call was a letter he received from Hunt's mother, Nola Hunt of Toledo, Ohio, wrote the judge saying her son, Joe, wants the opportunity to play professional football to relieve her of the burden of supporting six sons.

Hunt is under indefinite suspension in his senior year at Michigan State and contends missing the season would harm his chances of playing professionally. Cobb's suspension is for five games.

Fox said Mrs. Hunt wrote him that the family is very poor but all her sons have good reputations.

The judge said he used her letter "as a method of setting up a conference call with all the attorneys and suggested they arrange for the subcommittee of the NCAA Council to be reconvened and have the students present to review the case."

Two weeks ago, Fox refused to grant an injunction the two players and five of their teammates sought so they could play until their case received a full hearing. The other five were suspended only for the opening game against Ohio State.

Hunt and Cobb were suspended longer for using a Spartan fan's credit card to buy clothing. Four of the others were suspended for having credit with a travel agency and the fifth for riding part way home with an assistant coach one Thanksgiving.

Thursday, the judge said "the credit card arrangement was an entrapment, which to persons being brought up in the ghetto with this kind of poverty, it was attractive."

During two days of court hearings on the injunction bid, Fox called the credit card being left in a car lent to Hunt and Cobb "a compelling temptation."

But the judge said nothing in the law allowed him to grant the injunction. The players claimed they were deprived of their rights to fair hearings before being suspended. The judge found their rights were protected although "the procedure was far from ideal."

The judge said the lawyers he talked with Wednesday are "in the process, I understand, of trying to set up a rehearing."

George H. Gangwere, general counsel for the NCAA in Kansas City, said Thursday it is now up to MSU to make formal application for a rehearing, and added he understands such a request will be made.

Gangwere pointed out that it was the school which declared the players ineligible, in accordance with an NCAA regulation. He said NCAA rules permit schools to ask that eligibility be restored when that would be in the best interest of justice.

Called Best Ever By Navy's Welsh

From Associated Press

Michigan, now comfortably established as the nation's No. 1 college football team, is expected to make things very uncomfortable for Navy's sinkable Middies Saturday.

The Wolverines, who led The Associated Press poll by only one point over Ohio State after struggling to a 40-27 victory over Wisconsin in their opening game, widened the gap over the Buckeyes to 158 points after mauling Stanford 51-0 last week.

Michigan has a powerful offense keyed around a devastating running game that produced 116 yards against Stanford and led Navy Coach George Welsh to proclaim that the Wolverines have "the best all-around backfield I have ever seen in college football."

That's quite a statement, considering he was an assistant at Penn State a few years ago when the Nittany Lions had quarterback John Huftagel and running backs Franco Harris and Lydell Mitchell in their backfield.

"I hope our team understands there's always a chance," Welsh said, not sounding confident of an upset.

Fritsch is from East Detroit.

Michigan offensive guard Greg Bartnick, out with a knee injury, will be dressed for Saturday's game along with offensive guard Kirk Lewis, who has been sidelined with a back problem.

Michigan officials said Thursday that only 4,000 seats remain for the game.

While Michigan figures to lead the Middies, second-ranked Ohio State will meet giant-killer Missouri.

Both Michigan and Ohio State will be at home, as will the next five teams in the rankings. No. 3 Pitt entertains Temple, fourth-ranked Oklahoma plays Florida State, fifth-rated UCLA faces the Air Force at night, No. 6 Nebraska opposes Texas Christian and seventh-ranked Georgia meets South Carolina.

Meanwhile, eighth-rated Maryland plays at Syracuse and No. 9 Texas A&M battles Houston in the Astrodome at night. Tenth-ranked Kansas is idle.

Among the Second Ten, it will be Iowa at No. 11 Penn State, Tulsa at 12th-ranked Arkansas, Vanderbilt at 13th-rated Alabama, Baylor at No. 14 Illinois in a regionally televised game, Rice at 15th-ranked Louisiana State at night, 16th-rated North Carolina at Army, No. 17 Mississippi at Southern Mississippi at night, 18th-ranked Boston College at Tulane at night, No. 19 Southern California at Purdue, and 20th-ranked Texas Tech at New Mexico at night.

Other regionally televised games include San Jose State at Stanford, Massachusetts at Harvard, Tennessee against Auburn at Birmingham, Ala.; Madison, Va., at Hampden-Sydney and Jackson, Miss., at Mississippi Valley.

Unpredictable Missouri upset Southern Cal in its opener, then in turn was upset by Illinois, causing a perplexing problem for this week's opponent, Ohio State.

"We'll assume the real Missouri team is the one that played Southern California," said Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes. "Missouri is explosive but evidently it had a little letdown after its great game at Southern Cal. You can bet they'll be on the way back ... and you can bet we'll be waiting for them."

Missouri, however, will not be as explosive as Hayes thinks because injured first-string quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz will not play.

Pitt also has lost its quarterback — Bob Haygood — for Saturday's game against Temple, and for the season. He was injured last week, putting the pressure on junior Matt Cavanaugh, the Panthers' only quarterback with experience.

Oklahoma, unbeaten in 26 straight intersectional games, including post-season contests, and 34-1 under Coach Barry Switzer, should not have much trouble with Florida State, a 47-0 loser against Miami, Fla., last week. Nevertheless, Switzer is concerned.

"I'm always concerned with our mental attitude when people expect us to run over someone," he said.

Coach Bob Bowden, in his first year at Florida State after several years at West Virginia, also is concerned ... concerned that his team can make a commendable comeback.

"I never had a football team that got trounced that failed to come back and show something the next week," he said. "It's all down to the personal pride of our players."

In an effort to get his team untracked, Bowden has demoted seven starters.

The UCLA-Air Force game will match the Bruins' bruising ground attack, paced by Theotis Brown, Wendell Tyler and quarterback Jeff Dankworth, and their stingy first-string defense, nicknamed "The Fire Fighters," against the Falcons' pass-minded offense. UCLA's No. 1 defensive unit has not yielded a touchdown in victories over Arizona State and Arizona, while Air Force quarterback Rob Shaw has gained 428 yards through the air in two games.

Phillies Top Cards, Magic Number Five

From Associated Press

The Philadelphia Phillies are talking, and more importantly playing, like winners once again.

"Only a monumental collapse can beat us now, and we're not capable of that," said veteran catcher Tim Lincecum, whose two-run homer helped Philadelphia beat the St. Louis Cardinals 7-3 Thursday night behind the pitching of Steve Carlton, who posted his 19th victory.

"That's the way we played the first part of the year," observed Carlton. "We're starting to play again like we know how."

The victory kept the Phils six full games ahead of second-place Pittsburgh in the National League East, offsetting the Pirates' 5-4, 10-inning triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

The Phils' magic number is now five — any combination of five Philadelphia wins or Pittsburgh losses will give the Phils the division title.

Carlton, 19-6, gave up seven hits and struck out nine over the first eight innings before tiring. Ron Reed pitched a scoreless ninth.

The Phils broke the game open with three runs in the fourth inning, two of them on McCarrver's third home run of the season.

Three players were hit by pitches in the late innings. In the bottom of the eighth, Cards reliever Al Hrabosky — raked in the eighth inning Wednesday night when the Phillies scored eight runs — hit Bobby Tolan and Greg Luzinski with pitches.

Home plate umpire Dick Stello issued a warning to Reed, which carries with it an automatic $100 fine.

"It was worth it, whatever it cost," said Phillies Manager Danny Ozark. "We'll pay the fine. I'll pay it myself."

In the only other National League game, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 4-1. New York at Montreal was postponed by rain and cold weather.

First Ott made a spectacular tag on a play at the plate to prevent the winning run from scoring in the bottom of the ninth. Then he rapped a run-scoring double in the 10th to score Renaldo Stennett with the decisive tally.

Brett Loses No-Hitter, Game A's, Orioles Still Alive

From Associated Press

The Kansas City Royals had the opportunity to slam the door in Oakland's face, but the A's still have their feet inside.

"We're very confident," said Oakland's Sal Bando.

The New York Yankees had the chance to seal the door on Baltimore, but the Orioles still see a crack.

"It's possible they'll continue to lose more games," said Baltimore's Rick Dempsey. "The Philadelphia Phillies blew it in 1984 somehow."

The runnups in the two American League divisional races remained on the critical list, but both still had a wisp of hope after "must" victories over the leaders Thursday night.

The A's refused to let the 8-1 rout of Kansas City that moved them within five games of the West leaders. The Orioles shocked the Yankees 2-1 to sweep their four-game series and climb within 7 1/2 games of the East front-runners.

"We might have instilled some doubt in them," said Bando after the A's second straight rout of the Royals.

Acknowledging a possible pennant race in the West, Oakland pitcher Mike Torrez said: "We know we have to win every game. Hopefully, Texas will give us a little help. And we're going to have to sweep in Chicago."

"I don't really think there's any way they can blow it," said Dempsey. "But they really have to break their necks now. If we win all our games I think they'll really have to go hard to win three."

Torrez hurled a five-hitter to lead Oakland's victory. Torrez, 15-11, was in control all the way, allowing a lone run in the sixth on singles by Tom Poquette, Amos Otis and John Mayberry.

Taking the loss was Kansas City starter Dennis Leonard, 17-9, who gave up five runs in the first two innings. The A's pounded seven hits, but were aided by nine walks, three wild pitches and one hit batter.

Rookie Mike Flanagan outduelled veteran Catfish Hunter for his third major league victory as Baltimore again stalled New York's pennant drive. Flanagan allowed six singles and Ken Singleton drove in both Baltimore runs with a seventh-inning triple and a ninthinning single. The setback was the fifth in a row for the Yankees, their longest losing streak of the season.

In other American League action, the Boston Red Sox routed the Milwaukee Brewers 10-3; the Minnesota Twins blanked the Chicago White Sox 3-0 and the Texas Rangers nipped the California Angels 6-5.

Larry Hale tripled leading off the eighth inning to break up Ken Brett's no-hitter and scored on Craig Kusick's sacrifice fly as Minnesota beat Chicago. Pete Redfern, 7-4, tossed a three-hitter while striking out four and walking one.

Mike Hargrove's ninth-inning home run gave Texas its victory over California. Hargrove connected off relief pitcher Dick Drago, 7-8, after the Angels had rallied to tie the game with two runs in the eighth inning. Hargrove's seventh homer of the year enabled reliever Steve Hargard to register his seventh victory in 15 decisions.

"I'm always concerned with our mental attitude when people expect us to run over someone," he said.

Coach Bob Bowden, in his first year at Florida State after several years at West Virginia, also is concerned ... concerned that his team can make a commendable comeback.

"I never had a football team that got trounced that failed to come back and show something the next week," he said. "It's all down to the personal pride of our players."

In an effort to get his team untracked, Bowden has demoted seven starters.

The UCLA-Air Force game will match the Bruins' bruising ground attack, paced by Theotis Brown, Wendell Tyler and quarterback Jeff Dankworth, and their stingy first-string defense, nicknamed "The Fire Fighters," against the Falcons' pass-minded offense. UCLA's No. 1 defensive unit has not yielded a touchdown in victories over Arizona State and Arizona, while Air Force quarterback Rob Shaw has gained 428 yards through the air in two games.

Phillies Top Cards, Magic Number Five

From Associated Press

The Philadelphia Phillies are going, and more importantly, like winners once.

Only a monumental collapse beat us now, and we're not able of that," said veteran pitcher Tim Lincecum, whose run homer helped Philadelphia beat the St. Louis Cardinals 7-3 Thursday night and the pitching of Steve Carlton, who posted his 19th victory.

That's the way we played first part of the year," observed Carlton. "We're starting to play again like we know it."

The victory kept the Phils six games ahead of the Pirates in the National League East, off-sets the Pirates' 5-4, 10-inning triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

The Phils' magic number is five — any combination of Philadelphia wins or Pittsburgh losses will give the Phils the division title.

Carlton, 19-6, gave up seven hits and struck out nine over the first eight innings before tiring. Ron Reed pitched a scoreless ninth.

The Phils broke the game open with three runs in the fourth inning, two of them on McCarter's third home run of the season.

Three players were hit by pitches in the late innings. In the bottom of the eighth, Cards reliever Al Hrabosky — raked in the eighth inning Wednesday night when the Phillies scored eight runs — hit Bobby Tolan and Greg Luzinski with pitches.

The Phillies claimed it was deliberate, that Hrabosky was angry and frustrated by his earlier performance. In the ninth, a pitch from Reed hit the Cards' leadoff hitter, Hector Cruz.

Home plate umpire Dick Stello issued a warning to Reed, which carries with it an automatic $100 fine.

"It was worth it, whatever it cost," said Phillies Manager Danny Ozark. "We'll pay the fine. I'll pay it myself."

In the only other National League game, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 4-1. New York at Montreal was postponed by rain and cold weather.

The Pirates came up with about as unlikely a hero as possible — Ed Ott, a 25-year-old rookie third-string catcher who was making his first major league start.

First Ott made a spectacular tag on a play at the plate to prevent the winning run from scoring in the bottom of the ninth. Then he rapped a run-scoring double in the 10th to score Rennie Stennett with the decisive tally.

Ott was in the lineup only because injuries shelved the Pirates' top two catchers, Manny Sanguillen and Duffy Dyer.

The game was the fifth straight for the Pirates which has been decided in the last inning, including all four in the series which they split with the Cubs.

Shamrocks' JVs Tie Watervliet

Watervliet drove to the Berrien one in the first quarter before being stopped and losing the ball on downs.

Brett Loses No-Hitter, Game A's, Orioles Still Alive

From Associated Press

The Kansas City Royals had the opportunity to slam the door in Oakland's face, but the A's still have their feet inside.

"We're very confident," said Oakland's Sal Bando.

The New York Yankees had the chance to seal the door on Baltimore, but the Orioles still see a crack.

"It's possible they'll continue to lose more games," said Baltimore's Rick Dempsey. "The Philadelphia Phillies blew it in 1964 somehow."

The runnersup in the two American League divisional races remained on the critical list, but both still had a wisp of hope after "must" victories over the leaders Thursday night.

The A's refused to die with an 8-1 rout of Kansas City that moved them within five games of the West leaders. The Orioles shocked the Yankees 2-1 to sweep their four-game series and climb within 7 1/2 games of the East front-runners.

"We might have instilled some doubt in them," said Bando after the A's second straight rout of the Royals.

Acknowledging a possible pennant race in the West, Oakland pitcher Mike Torrez said: "We know we have to win every game. Hopefully, Texas will give us a little help. And we're going to have to sweep in Chicago."

The Orioles face more of an impossible mission, since the Yankees' "magic number" for clinching their division is merely three. However, Dempsey, the Baltimore catcher, is hoping for a miracle.

"I don't really think there's any way they can blow it," said Dempsey. "But they really have to break their necks now. If we win all our games I think they'll really have to go hard to win three."

Torrez hurled a five-hitter to lead Oakland's victory. Torrez, 15-11, was in control all the way, allowing a lone run in the sixth on singles by Tom Poquette, Amos Otis and John Mayberry.

Taking the loss was Kansas City starter Dennis Leonard, 17-9, who gave up five runs in the first two innings. The A's pounded seven hits, but were aided by nine walks, three wild pitches and one hit batter.

Rookie Mike Flanagan outduelled veteran Catfish Hunter for his third major league victory as Baltimore again stalled New York's pennant drive. Flanagan allowed six singles and Ken Singleton drove in both Baltimore runs with a seventh-inning triple and a ninthinning single. The setback was the fifth in a row for the Yankees, their longest losing streak of the season.

In other American League action, the Boston Red Sox routed the Milwaukee Brewers 10-3; the Minnesota Twins blanked the Chicago White Sox 3-0 and the Texas Rangers nipped the California Angels 6-5.

MSU Favored By 10 Spartans Facing Winless Wolfpack

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State's football squad travels to North Carolina State this weekend to take on a Wolfpack team that has suffered three straight losses.

Even though the contest is on real grass and under the lights Saturday night, MSU figures to be a 10-point favorite to up its record to 2-1.

North Carolina State's woeful showing thus far isn't inflating heads among the Spartans, however. Coach Darryl Rogers pointedly reminds his players that their thrashing by Ohio State is only two weeks old, and they didn't look all that great against Wyoming, either.

And Rogers doesn't think the Wolfpack is as bad as it looks under new coach Bo Rein.

"They are not a poor football team," he said. "They have some fine personnel, some outstanding players. They're doing a better job than their record indicates."

But Rein himself says the

"You have to worry more about mental condition than physical condition at this point," he said. "You can't have a great mental attitude if you are 0-3 — but you can have a good attitude if all your players are trying to improve."

Rogers is most worried about NCS's offense, which operates the "veer" attack, although it has been inconsistent so far.

"They have good speed and throw effectively," he noted. "We could have some difficulty — our defense has not been able to show they can give the ball back (to the offense) quickly."

In polite terms, that means the Spartan defense gives up a lot of yards.

The top Wolfpack running threat is halfback Ted Brown, who has 287 yards in three games and a 5.5 yards-pergame average. Quarterback Johnny Evans is a triple-threat signal caller — the second leading rusher on the team, passing for 22 of 45 for 256 yards, and the team's punter with a 45-yard average.

Michigan State, meanwhile, expects to go with quarterback Ed Smith in his first start. The junior signal caller took over from Marshall Lawson in the first half last week and hit on 10 of 16 passes for two touchdowns to lead the Spartans to the win over Wyoming.

But Rogers says the quarterback battle is still alive, so Smith is not guaranteed being around at the final gun if MSU has tough going.

Unheralded Rich Baes, who raced for 133 yards last week and leads the Spartan ground attack, will start at tailback, while Levi Jackson will fill the fullback slot.

Linebacker Paul Rudzinski, who had 10 solo tackles last week, heads up the improved defense, although Rogers says he still isn't satisfied with the defense.

The game is the sixth one between the two schools, with MSU holding a 4-1 advantage. A crowd of some 35,000 is expected for the 7 p.m. EDT kickoff.

Errors Hurt Bears' JVs

Haukedahl scored on runs of 3, 1 and 14 yards. Quarterback Al Leisberg and Tim Hartson also scored TDs for the winners.

Don Feder rushed for 78 yards in 14 carries for St. Joe.

'Hondo' Leads Lakeshore Win

Lakeshore's Kim Foster has picked up the nickname "Hondo" with her heroics coming off the bench.

And Thursday night the Lancers answer to John Havlicek did it again. Foster came off the bench to score 14 points and lead Lakeshore to a 37-35 win over St. Joe.

Trailing 15-13 at halftime, Lakeshore used the play of Foster and Ivey Schewe, who scored 13 points, to outscore the Bears 17-5 in the third quarter. The big period gave the Lancers a 30-20 after three quarters and they held off a late St. Joe rally.

"Foster has been coming off the bench the last three games and really done the job," Lakeshore coach Bill Davison said. "She has scored in double figures in all three games. I plan to keep her in this role because she has been just what we needed off the bench."

Ann-Ryan was the only Bear player to hit for double digits, scoring 16.

In other area action Thursday involving Blossomland teams, Lake Michigan Catholic bombed Coloma 60-32, Buchanan ripped Galien 60-24, River Valley stayed unbeaten with a 45-31 win over Berrien Springs, Edwardsburg handed Marcellus its first loss 46-46 and Niles ripped Dowagiac 41-40.

Ann Donahue tossed in nine points and Carol Lomanaco added eight in the easy Lakeshore win. Catholic raced out to a 23-15 halftime bulge and was never headed.

Patience Vanderbush poured in 26 points in little more than a half to spark Buchanan's victory. Becky Gray and Karen Bobo each added 10 for the Bucks, now 4-1.

Buchanan held an 18-0 first-quarter lead and a 26-4 halftime margin. Sue Heller had eight points for the Cats.

River Valley rolled to its fourth straight win by running up a 17-2 lead in the first quarter. The Mustangs hit on 50 per cent of their shots in the initial period, while limiting the Shamrocks to only one of 11 from the floor.

Debbie Lundin paced the balanced Mustang attack with 12. Wendy Schwark added 11 and Peggy DeMorrow and Ruth Simmons had eight apiece.

Denise Brown pumped in 14, but it wasn't enough to keep Edwardsburg from handing Marcellus its first loss in six games.

Niles held off a late Dowagiac rally to post its win. Beth Schrumph had 16 points for Niles, while Dowagiac's Ola Houston led all scorers with 23.

Hoople Tells Picks Secret

BY MAJOR AMOS R. HOOPLE

The Wizard Of Weirdest. Whoa, fellow football freaks!! Please, no more phone calls.

Somehow, word has leaked out about my fantastic predictions of last week. Hoople cashed in on 86 per cent of his college picks, and since then everybody and his brother has been calling to find out my predicting secret.

I will have to comment that some of the calls have not been too complimentary. A few of you have threatened to show the ole major how to eat out of the side of his face if he reveals the secret.

So, with bodyguards by my side, I am now set to tell my faithful fans how to pick the winners.

1. The most important thing to know is who is playing...without this knowledge, it is extremely difficult to choose the winner.

2. Give the home team a 10-point advantage over the visitors. Chances are they know the field better than their opponent. Of course, if the field is AstroTurf, give the home team a 14-point advantage...especially if they fill their foes' end zone with land mines.

3. Check last year's score. This is a very good barometer as to how the game could go. For example, if team A beat team B 49-0 on the road last season, chances are team B has about as much chance as a snowball in Brazil of beating team A this season.

4. Last, but not least, cheat. Just happen to mention to a buddy you are picking a certain score and chances are he will tell you how he picks the game. If you go with his choice and it come up wrong, you have a built-in excuse for losing and then can never be criticized for a wrong pick.

To test this theory, I will use it on one of the tougher games on this week's schedule — Michigan-Navy — to prove my system is infallible. First, we know who the teams are.

Ball State Seeking Share Of MAC Lead

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ball State can take a giant stride toward the 1976 Mid-American Conference football title if it wins at Toledo Saturday night.

The Cardinals would move alongside Ohio University and Western Michigan for the early MAC lead at 2-0.

However, uneven MAC scheduling this fall has Ball State playing just five league games. The last three are with Northern Illinois, Western Michigan and Eastern Michigan, picked to finish in the last three places in the race.

Ball State, after disposing of defending champion Miami 23-7 last week, will be a solid favorite to grab its 10th straight victory, longest in the nation with Rutgers.

Toledo faces its worst start in 12 seasons. The Rockets already have bowed on the road to Massachusetts and Central Michigan. Toledo has not lost three in a row since beginning the 1964 campaign.

Ball State-Toledo is the only conference fare awaiting MAC teams this weekend.

However, league prestige goes on the line when Bowling Green, Ohio and Western Michigan risk their unbeaten status against major inter-sectional powers.

Bowling Green's Falcons (20), without star fullback Dan Sulcat, who underwent knee surgery, stay at home for San Diego State's 2-0 passing whizzes.

A big, run-oriented Idaho squad (2-0) visits Ohio (2-0) while Western Michigan (2-0) goes to Minnesota, trying to avenge a 55-0 whipping from the Big Ten school last fall.

Other nonconference games send Central Michigan (1-1) to Marshall, Kent State (1-1) to Iowa State and, at night, Miami (0-3) to Cincinnati, Eastern Michigan (0-3) to McNeese State and Northern Illinois (0-2) to Long Beach State.

MSU Favored By 10 Spartans Facing Winless Wolfpack

Errors Hurt Bears' JVs

Six lost fumbles, a pass interception and a blocked punt helped to ruin the Bears' chances.

Haukedahl scored on runs of 3, 1 and 14 yards. Quarterback Al Isenderg and Tim Hartson also scored TDs for the winners.

Effort Paced By Joan Haase 'Big Boys' Throw High Team Series

By AL AREND

Although they go by the name "Big Boys" and their scores resemble that of a good men's team, five women from the twin cities have teamed into what may become the top women's squad in the area.

Last Friday night at Blossom Lanes, Elias Brothers Restaurant's Big Boys scorched the lanes with a 2625 team series — only four pins shy of last year's area women's high team series. Joan Haase of St. Joseph paced the effort with a season's high 814 series on games of 188-203-213. Team captain Sandrus "Cookie" Clay of Benton Harbor rolled a 592, including a 233 game, and Sandra Mahoney of St. Joseph had a 529. Daisy Taylor of Benton Harbor, the team's newest member, had a 484 and Jessie Brown had a 406.

"We knew after the second game that we had a shot at a 2600 series," Mrs. Haase recalls. "Everyone really bore down that third game and we got it."

Barbara Hanrahan of St. Joseph also broke the 600 barrier with a 601 at Blossom Lanes last Friday night to put her in second place on the area leader board. Bachelor's 14 of Benton Harbor, looks like another women's team to watch this year, as they rolled a 2567

Announcement Irks Oakland's Finley

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charlie Finley wasted no time in airing his feelings about Thursday's surprise announcement that major league baseball clubs could begin negotiating with unsigned players as soon as the season ends.

Kart Racing At Buchanan

BUCHANAN — An end-of-the-year championship race will be Sunday, Sept. 26, by the Buchanan Kart Club here at Christie's Kart Raceway.

MUSKEGON — Playing without standout Carmella Hall, Benton Harbor's girls basketball team was drubbed 60-37 by Muskegon Heights here Thursday night.

Hall is out for two weeks with an injury sustained Tuesday against Lake Michigan Catholic. And the loss was felt.

"It was a tremendous loss," Tiger coach Judy Branks said of Hall. "She carries the spirit of the team for one thing. We couldn't stop their fast break, we had poor rebounding and we had poor foul shooting."

Dorothy Logan paced the leaders with 19. Benton Harbor is now 3-3.

Putts & Pars

Miami Expected To Come Roaring Back

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
There's an old adage in pro football: "You don't want to play a team used to winning after it's lost and you don't want to play a team used to losing after it's won." — The Wit and Wisdom of Lou Holtz.

Sounds logical. A perennial winner which has just suffered an unexpected setback is likely to come out roaring in order to rectify the situation.

A loser which has just pulled off an upset may well become a believer in itself, play over its head and pull off another one.

Holtz' New York Jets face the first half of the quandary in Sunday's National Football League action. They visit the Miami Dolphins, who got shocked last weekend. The Pittsburgh Steelers face the second half, hosting the New England Patriots, who did the shocking.

and San Francisco at Seattle. On Monday night it's Washington at Philadelphia.

"This is a time not to panic, to believe in what you're doing, to learn from your mistakes ... and to try to put everything back together," said Coach Don Shula, whose Dolphins were belted 30-14 by the upstart Pats.

"After a beating like we took, the whole attitude becomes more somber," he added. "I think everybody gets a little more serious after a loss."

If that's the case, then the Jets are downright grim. They've suffered through two losses, the latter a 46-3 humiliation in Denver. Neither Joe Namath nor top rookie Richard Todd could move the team with any success and the club had to play a futile game of catch-up after giving up 23 second-period points.

"The Jets are somewhat of a mystery so far," Shula observed. "But if you analyze the things you know about them, they still have great offensive ability, starting with Joe and his receivers."

The Patriots scored their stunner on the arm and legs of second-year quarterback Steve Grogan, who threw three touchdown passes and scored a fourth on a 13-yard run.

"He has a feeling for the running game," said Coach Chuck Fairbanks. "I don't want him to run a whole lot. But it's not a bad idea to take advantage of his strength."

One of the Steelers' strengths gets stronger Sunday with the return of Lynn Swann, knocked out of commission with a concussion in the season-opening loss at Oakland. The Pittsburgh running game is already as sound as can be with two backs, Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier, among the top 10 in the American Conference.

Marilyn Kraklau of St. Joseph tossed the women's high game of the year Thursday night in the Ladies Classic Doubles league at Gersonde's. The 245 enabled her to bowl a 592 series.

On the men's side of the ledger, Corky's Plumbing and Heating team took over the men's team series lead with a 2945 in Wil-O-Paw's Fruit Belt league Tuesday night.

Jim Smiley of St. Joseph rolled his first 600 series with a 612 at Blossom Lanes in the Heath Men's league Wednesday night.

Thinking about turning pro? Earl Anthony, who has won the George Young PBA Memorial award for high average on the PBA tour the last three years, leads in that department after the recently completed summer tour.

Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., started the summer with an average of 216.934 and has upped it to 217.291 in 783 games. Mark Roth of Staten Island, N.Y. is in second with a 216.098 average for 773 games. The 25th ranked professional (average-wise) is Ernie Schlegel with a 209.334 average in 788 games.

BH Girls Topped

MUSKEGON — Playing without standout Carmella Hull, Benton Harbor's girls basketball team was drubbed 66-37 by Muskegon Heights here Thursday night.

Hull is out for two weeks with an injury sustained Tuesday against Lake Michigan Catholic. And the loss was felt.

"It was a tremendous loss," Tiger coach Judy Brooks said of Hull. "She carries the spirit of the team for one thing. We couldn't stop their fast break, we had poor rebounding and we had poor foul shooting."

Dorothy Logan paced the losers with 19. Benton Harbor is now 3-2.

Buck Harriers Post Victories

BUCHANAN — Using good team balance, Buchanan scored a pair of victories in a double dual cross country meet here Thursday.

The Bucks topped Lake Michigan Catholic 22-37 and Berrien Springs 26-31.

Tim Gentry of Catholic set a new Buchanan course record of 17:37 in winning the meet. Berrien's Kevin Carmichael was second in 17:38, but from there on it was almost all Buchanan.

Rod Snow took third, John Daugherty fourth, Mark Entenmen sixth, Eric Mollberg ninth and Jeff Christie 12th.

Fire Ban Lifted In Lower Peninsula

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A ban on open fires in the northern two-thirds of the Lower Peninsula was lifted Thursday by Gov. William Milliken, although a similar Upper Peninsula order remains in effect. Milliken issued a proclamation rescinding the ban because "recent rainfall and high humidity has reduced the forest fire hazard to normal conditions." Milliken said the ban remains in effect for the Upper Peninsula, where fire hazard conditions still are high.

In the U.P., the ban prohibits camp fires, burning of rubbish, brush or crop residues, and smoking in public or private forest lands, grasslands, swamps or truck areas. Fires are permitted in authorized camp grounds, and fires and smoking are permitted inside buildings, cars and trucks.

Meanwhile, a special State Police fire investigating team has been called into the Munising area to probe a series of small forest fires authorities say were deliberately set. Officials said nine fires were reported in the past week, all in the Upper Peninsula's Houghton National Forest. Five of the blazes have been confirmed as arson.

FIRE FIGHTERS' CAMP: Some 1,000 fire fighters in camps similar to this one at Star Siding near Shingleton remain on scene even though forest fire that has blackened 70,000 acres of land in Seney National Game Refuge has been contained. Their objective will be to keep hot spots, as they develop, as cool as possible. (AP Wirephoto)

One federal official who refused to be named speculated the fires might have been set to keep a huge force of federal firefighters in the area because of the money they spend in the economically depressed region. Those firemen have been battling a seven-week old blaze near Seney.

The largest of the recent blazes consumed some 300 acres near Steuben, about five miles from Seney, officials said. A $1,000 reward has been offered for information leading to the arrest of the culprits, state police said.

HARD TO CONTAIN: This is example of why fire in Seney National Wildlife Refuge that has burned over 70,000 acres is difficult to control and contain. The fire has burned underground through muck and has caught fire to hollow tree that burns inside and up above ground. The wind may then catch blaze and spread it to surrounding area. (AP Wirephoto)

Lee Hospital Medicaid Loss Is Predicted

DOWAGIAC — Lee Memorial hospital here could lose up to $100,000 annually under an impending state law that would reduce state reimbursement for Medicaid patients' hospital bills, according to the hospital administrator.

Administrator Thomas S. Dube said the hospital could not absorb the loss and could be forced to raise charges to non-welfare patients.

He said the new legislation becomes law Oct. 1, and will affect about 20 per cent of the patients the hospital admits each year.

Formerly, the state reimbursed hospitals for a Medicaid patient's entire hospital stay.

Under the new law, state reimbursement will be for the number of days equivalent to the average stay of 75 per cent of previous patients who had the same medical problem.

The administrator said he is joining the Michigan Hospital association in alerting state legislators "...and the public to the dangers involved in this arbitrarily imposed limitation on Medicaid reimbursement to Michigan hospitals."

Camper-Hiker Group Meeting At Fairgrounds

BERRIEN SPRINGS—The Michigan state chapter of the National Campers and Hikers Association (NCHA) is holding its annual campout today through Sunday at the Berrien County Youth fairgrounds.

About 1,600 camping units housing about 6,000 people are expected, according to the NCHA.

The campout is being held in conjunction with the Niles Apple Festival. Shuttle buses will be available from the fairgrounds to Niles for the festival and the festival parade.

Teachers Say Issues Not Monetary

BY LARRY MacENTRIVE
Staff Writer

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The president of the Berrien Springs Education association said today she objects to a statement made yesterday by Supt. Jon Schuster concerning unresolved issues in teacher contract negotiations at the district.

BSEA President Mae Taiclet

said Schuster's statement implied that the school board and union were still arguing mainly over money items in contract negotiations. That is misleading, she said. The seven items that the union feels remain unresolved deal mainly with working conditions, she said.

In announcing yesterday that the BSEA had asked for mediation, Schuster said, "The board of education, following 21 negotiating sessions, finds it impossible to meet the demands of the teachers' union and at the same time represent the taxpayers of the district."

Mrs. Taiclet said both sides in mid-August had agreed to teacher pay raises averaging 4.6 per cent this year and a dental insurance plan worth

She said the union was under the impression the pay raises would be retroactive to the beginning of the school year. Schuster said yesterday retroactive increases were still a matter to be negotiated.

We don't want it to look like it's all money issues because it is not," Mrs. Taiclet said.

According to her, items still unresolved include rights to binding arbitration, rights to health insurance, how teachers are to be evaluated, school calendar changes, grievance procedures, and determination of seniority.

The BSEA requested mediation in an effort to get these items settled quickly, she said.

Mrs. Taiclet said she was surprised to read of Schuster's concern for taxpayers. "He didn't seem to think about that when he got a 7.8 per cent pay raise last spring," she said.

Fire Ban Lifted In Lower Peninsula

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A ban on open fires in the northern two-thirds of the Lower Peninsula was lifted Thursday by Gov. William Milliken, although a similar Upper Peninsula order remains in effect. Milliken issued a proclamation rescinding the ban because "recent rainfall and high humidity has reduced the forest fire hazard to normal conditions." Milliken said the ban remains in effect for the Upper Peninsula, where fire hazard conditions still are high.

In the U.P., the ban prohibits camp fires, burning of rubbish, trash or crop residues, and smoking in public or private forest lands, grasslands, swamps or muck areas. Fires are permitted in authorized camp grounds, and fires and smoking are permitted inside buildings, cars and trucks.

Meanwhile, a special State Police fire investigating team has been called into the Munising area to probe a series of small forest fires authorities say were deliberately set. Officials said nine fires were reported in the past week, all in the Upper Peninsula's Hiawatha National Forest. Five of the blazes have been confirmed as arson.

One federal official who refused to be named speculated the fires might have been set to keep a huge force of federal firefighters in the area because of the money they spend in the economically depressed region. Those firemen have been battling a seven-week old blaze near Seney.

The largest of the recent blazes consumed some 300 acres near Steuben, about five miles from Seney, officials said. A $1,000 reward has been offered for information leading to the arrest of the culprits, state police said.

FIRE FIGHTERS' CAMP: Some 1,000 fire fighters in camps similar to this one at Star Siding near Shingleton remain on scene even though forest fire that has blackened 70,000 acres of land in Seney National Game Refuge has been contained. Their objective will be to keep hot spots, as they develop, as cool as possible. (AP Wirephoto)

HARD TO CONTAIN: This is example of why fire in Seney National Wildlife Refuge that has burned over 70,000 acres is difficult to control and contain. The fire has burned underground through muck and has caught fire to hollow tree that burns inside and up above ground. The wind may then catch blaze and spread it to surrounding area. (AP Wirephoto)

Lee Hospital Medicaid Loss Is Predicted

DOWAGIAC — Lee Memorial hospital here could lose up to $100,000 annually under an impending state law that would reduce state reimbursement for Medicaid patients' hospital bills, according to the hospital administrator.

Administrator Thomas S. Dube said the hospital could not absorb the loss and could be forced to raise charges to non-welfare patients.

He said the new legislation becomes law Oct. 1, and will affect about 20 per cent of the patients the hospital admits each year.

Formerly, the state reimbursed hospitals for a Medicaid patient's entire hospital stay.

Under the new law, state reimbursement will be for the number of days equivalent to the average stay of 75 per cent of previous patients who had the same medical problem.

Dube said chances are "...usually nil" that the hospital can collect from the welfare patient the charges for treatment beyond the average.

The administrator said he is

Camper-Hiker Group Meeting At Fairground

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Michigan state chapter of the National Campers and Hikers Association (NCHA) is holding its annual campout through Sunday at the Berrien County Youth fairgrounds.

About 1,600 camping, including about 6,000 people expected, according to NCHA.

The campout is being held in conjunction with the Niles Area Festival. Shuttle buses will be available from the fairground to Niles for the festival and festival parade.

Teachers Say Issues Not Monetary

BY LARRY MacINTYRE
Staff Writer

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The president of the Berrien Springs Education association said today she objects to a statement made yesterday by Supt. Jon Schuster concerning unresolved issues in teacher contract negotiations at the district.

BSEA President Mae Taiclet

said Schuster's statement implied that the school board and union were still arguing mainly over money items in contract negotiations. That is misleading, she said. The seven items that the union feels remain unresolved deal mainly with working conditions, she said.

In announcing yesterday that the BSEA had asked for mediation, Schuster said, "The board of education, following 21 negotiating sessions, finds it impossible to meet the demands of the teachers' union and at the same time represent the taxpayers of the district."

Mrs. Taiclet said both sides in mid-August had agreed to teacher pay raises averaging 4.6 per cent this year and a dental insurance plan worth about $130 per teacher.

She said the union was under the impression the pay raises would be retroactive to the beginning of the school year. Schuster said yesterday retroactive increases were still a matter to be negotiated.

We don't want it to look like it's all money issues because it is not," Mrs. Taiclet said.

According to her, items still unresolved include rights to binding arbitration, rights to health insurance, how teachers are to be evaluated, school calendar changes, grievance procedures, and determination of seniority.

From the union's point of view, the only money item unresolved is additional pay for

The BSEA requested mediation in an effort to get these items settled quickly, she said.

Mrs. Taiclet said she was surprised to read of Schuster's concern for taxpayers. "He didn't seem to think about that when he got a 7.8 per cent pay raise last spring," she said.

Rhodesian Leaders Agree To Black Majority Rule

By JOHN EDLEN
Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith will announce tonight that his white minority government is bowing to pressure from the United States and South Africa and is agreeing to hand over power to Rhodesia's black majority within two years, informed sources reported today.

The government refused to comment on the report. "Everything that has to be said will be said when the prime minister speaks to the nation later," a government spokesman said. Smith scheduled a radio and television speech at 8 p.m. (2 p.m. EDT) to announce the response of his government and his ruling Rhodesian Front party to the British-American plan urged on him last weekend by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and South African Prime Minister John Vorster.

Smith told reporters Thursday, after a caucus of the 50 Rhodesian Front members of parliament that he would make a "clear and positive and unequivocal statement. There will be no doubt in anybody's mind."

The sources said the government would insist, however, on an end to the guerrilla war that Rhodesian black nationalists have been waging from bases in Mozambique and Zambia.

Kissinger, on his way home, told reporters in London Thursday night that he would be surprised if the Rhodesians rejected his proposals. But British officials in London were skeptical.

Kissinger again declined to disclose the details of the plan. Other sources have said it includes black power by the end of 1978, admission of blacks to the Rhodesian parliament and government in the interim and a $2-billion fund supplied by the United States, Britain and other countries. The money would compensate Rhodesian whites who leave the country and aid development of the country under black rule.

Reporters traveling with Kissinger were told that he was urging the British, as the technically sovereign power in Rhodesia, to insist on a speedup in the schedule to get the blacks into power by next spring. British officials were reported opposed to such an acceleration.

U.S. officials in Kissinger's party said he wants quick action to head off Soviet efforts to persuade black African leaders that the United States is trying to maintain white supremacy in southern Africa in a new form.

Fighting in the four-year-old guerrilla war in Rhodesia continued Thursday. Government officials announced that

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state has issued a cease-and-desist order to a West Virginia company and three of its officers for alleged violation of Michigan's securities law.

Officials in the Corporation and Securities Bureau of the state Department of Commerce said the men sold Michigan investors unregistered certificates of interest or participation in 12 oil and gas leases in West Virginia from October 1975 to March 1976.

Named in the order are Associated Minerals Inc. of Parkersburg, W. Va., and Walter Allen of Belpre, Ohio, the company's president. Also named were Rodney Stewart of Parkersburg and Charles Allen of Marietta, Ohio, officers in the company.

The order revokes and denies exemptions from registration for the securities and for the three officers in Michigan.

Bureau Director Hugh Makens said investors were not given financial information about the company and were not told that a federal district court had issued a permanent injunction in 1973 against Charles Allen for violation of anti-fraud provisions of federal securities laws in connection with oil and gas lease offerings in West Virginia.

Monthly hearings will be held before the Michigan Public Service Commission for the purpose of considering authorization to permit Consumers Power Company to reflect in monthly billings to its customers charges or credits for changes in appropriate items of expense associated with purchased and net interchange power from a base cost included in previously approved rate levels.

A hearing will be held on October 7, 1976 at 9:30 AM in the offices of the Commission, 6545 Mercantile Way, Lansing, Michigan to consider inclusion of a proposed purchased and net interchange power adjustment charge of minus .40 mills per kilowatt-hour to be applied to bills rendered to Consumers Power Company customers in the November 1976 billing period.

The hearing shall be for the purpose of determining the amount of purchased and interchange power expense incurred during the calendar month of August 1976 and the reasons therefor. Details of the calculation of the proposed adjustment will be presented along with a summary of net system kilowatt-hour requirements including details of the various types of purchased and interchange power transactions and circumstances necessitating any outages of installed capacity for a period exceeding ninety (90) days. This information will be available on and after September 27, 1976 for examination

CELEBRATES 79TH BIRTHDAY SUNDAY

Retirement Of Pope Not Likely

By MICHAEL J. DUFFY
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Age and increasing hostility have turned Pope Paul VI into an insular figure battling threats of schism and personal attacks from the right and the left.

Pope Paul will be 79 next Sunday, just a year short of the age he himself decreed that cardinals should give up their jobs and be deprived of voting rights for a new Pope.

But long-time Vatican observers give little credence to theories of papal retirement. According to Vatican doctors, the most serious ailment suffered by the Pope is arthritis of the right knee which causes him difficulty in walking.

The past year, the 13th of his pontificate, has brought a series of events that have forced the Pope into an increasingly defensive position — a Communist-affiliated mayor in Rome, and personal attacks from dissidents within the Roman Catholic Church.

The biggest threat to papal authority today comes not from any young reformist priest threatening to become a modern day Martin Luther. Rather the Pope is most concerned about an elderly French bishop, the Most Rev. Marcel Lefebvre, who says Mass in Latin, wears old-fashioned lace-trimmed vestments and longs to return to the pre-Reformation purity of the Catholic Church.

Bishop Lefebvre has accused the Pope of being influenced by Protestants, Communists and Free Masons, and the bishop is a figurative leader of a breakaway movement that threatens to become a full-fledged schism with its own priests and bishops.

The threats of schism were lessened somewhat when Pope Paul met personally with Bishop Lefebvre Sept. 11 for an hour-long conversation that left the bishop encouraged about prospects for the future. But there was no guarantee that positions would not harden again.

The response of Pope Paul to all these challenges has been a change of perspective that has been developing for years.

During the early part of his papacy, Paul VI captured the fascination of the world with a tour of the slums of Bombay in India, a trip to the United Nations in New York to plead for world peace, the first papal visit to the heart of Africa and a 40,000-mile tour of Asia and the South Pacific.

Since the 1970 Asian-Pacific trip, Pope Paul has not been outside Italy.

In those early days of travel, Pope Paul embraced Patriarch Athenagoras in the Holy Land, Turkey and Rome in meetings that bridged 900 years of schism with the East; he prayed in St. Peter's with the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Rt. Rev. Michael Ramsey, then head of the Anglican Church; and he met with the head of the World Council of Churches in Geneva, Switzerland.

A major innovation of Pope Paul's pontificate was a new era of coexistence between the Church and Communist governments. He received Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny, the daughter and son-in-law of the late Nikita S. Khrushchev, President Tito of Yugoslavia and president Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania.

But the Pope has devoted much attention in recent months to a bitter and losing battle against Communist gains within Italy and the Pope's own diocese of Rome.

The most striking change of perspective in Pope Paul's pontificate, however, is within the Catholic Church. Dissidents on both ends of the ideological spectrum have engaged in harsh personal attacks on the Pope, and he has responded with equally personal condemnations. His critics accuse him of narrowing the boundaries of orthodoxy.

When Giovanni Battista Montini became Paul VI, the Catholic Church was in the midst of the ferment of Vatican II, the Ecumenical Council convened by Pope John XXIII. Pope Paul brought progressive credentials to the task of implementing some of the boldest reforms in the history of his Church.

Latin was replaced by the vernacular in worship, a 600-year domination of the College of Cardinals by Italians was broken by an international selection and a whole new spirit of discussion took over. Long-standing Catholic practices were questioned.

Beginning with his reaffirmation of the Church stand against artificial birth control in 1968, Pope Paul has grown increasingly concerned about the preservation of orthodoxy.

"The Pope is intellectually a progressive, but when it comes to putting the theories in practice, his background in the diplomatic corps of the Vatican makes him more reserved about the implications of change," one long-time Vatican observer said.

APPEALS FOR UNITY: Pope Paul VI, shown in Vatican City in August as he made dramatic appeal for church unity, is facing increasing hostility including threats of schism as he approaches his 79th birthday Sunday. ### Saginaw Man Is Reappointed Heinlein has been a member of the commission since 1972.

JOHN P. ROCHE

A Word Edgewise

As one who acutely recognizes the marginal status of his immortal soul, I have no intention of taking sides in the current dispute between Pope Paul and the French traditionalist Bishop Marcel Lefebvre on the form of the Mass. However, a related question is irresistible: How could anyone intelligent enough to become Pope get involved in such a no-win political scenario? One of the basic axioms that has enabled the Papacy to survive the centuries is: Let sleeping dogs lie. Why as it not been applied to Msgr. Lefebvre and his dedicated followers?

Msgr. Lefebvre is the spiritual director of a traditionalist Catholic seminary at Ecône, Switzerland. He rejects most of the decisions of the recent Vatican Council as heretical modernism, but has chosen the form of the Mass as the symbol of his crusade. Msgr. Lefebvre insists on celebrating the Tridentine Mass, a Latin formulation devised by the Council of Trent.

The Council of Trent is about as popular in Protestant circles as the British Parliament was to the American founding fathers. It set the pattern of the Counter-Reformation, a rigid mold far different from that of the Church in the high Middle Ages. Mysticism was suspect. In short, the Council of Trent declared total war on nonconformity.

In contrast, the Vatican Council of 1962-65 was concerned with Christian unity and ecumenism. This involved disposing, as quietly as possible, of the armaments of the Counter-Reformation.

A shift of this sort, no matter how gently the transition is handled, always disturbs a certain number of people. What is called for at such times is political rather than theological talent; flexibility. The history of the Catholic Church, moreover, indicates that flexibility is not considered a mortal sin.

In this connection, I shall never forget my father's reaction to the Maronites. These Lebanese Christians made it to Brooklyn Heights and set up Our Lady of Lebanon church. Dad, who was raised on the stronghold of the Counter-Reformation's Green Berets — Irish Catholicism — asked me one day about that "Arab Church where they cross themselves backwards." I explained that the Maronites were an Eastern Rite church — in communion with Rome. He was stunned that the Pope had such constituents, but (as was his custom) blamed it on the Italians.

Which brings us back to the controversy between Pope Paul and Msgr. Lefebvre. The Bishop is obviously trying to start a major theological dispute. Since he has chosen the Tridentine Latin Mass as the instrument of his revolt, why should the Pope not authorize its celebration?

Before the pious hit the roof at the suggestion the Holy Father be evasive, let me note that the clever British hierarchy in 1971 received papal permission to celebrate the Tridentine Mass, provided the local bishop approves. So far, Msgr. Lefebvre's movement has made virtually no headway among British Catholics.

Cardinal Wright, now in the Vatican but a veteran of Boston, might suggest to the Pope that a political, not a theological solution is in order.

Michigan To Have Veto Power Over N-Dump Site

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Federal authorities say Michigan will have the ultimate say on any federal plan to bury potentially dangerous nuclear wastes in the state.

Gov. William Milliken said Thursday he was told by Robert Seamans, administrator of the Energy Research and Development Administration, that the project to select a possible dumping site in Michigan "will be terminated...if the state raises issues...that are not resolved through a mutually acceptable procedure."

The federal government has reportedly considered several northeastern lower Michigan sites, including a prime location near Alpena, for disposal of wastes from nuclear power plants.

Milliken wrote Seamans recently that before any further discussions or decisions are made, "I, as governor, must be assured in writing that a disposal site will not be selected without approval of the state."

Seamans said in his letter that before a nuclear dump site is selected, "Federal and state governments must agree on appropriate and workable procedures for determining the acceptability of potential sites."

Seamans said that some 4 states "contain potential appropriate geological formations" to serve as a safe nuclear dumping site. But he said "full state participation is essential" to locate good sites.

The Michigan Environment Review Board and a "nuclear waste disposal task force" he met with Seamans' staff discuss the issue. Seamans promised the state will participate in forming criteria select dumping sites.

NAACP Has

Big Bill To Pay

ATLANTA (AP) — The man standing in front of City Hall collecting money wasn't a local beggar. He was Mayor Maynard Jackson.

The mayor said Thursday that he and black officials elsewhere in the nation were collecting money to help the NAACP meet a $1.6-million damage judgment due Monday in Port Gibson, Miss.

The NAACP lost a suit filed by a group of white businessmen for damages caused by an NAACP-sponsored boycott of their firms.

"If this money is not collected," and the NAACP cannot make that payment, which is to be held as bond while the group appeals, "they could break the financial back of the NAACP," Jackson said.

INVESTORS' GUIDE Investment Plan For Modest Salary

By SAM SHULSKY
Q. I have learned from reading your column that you feel young or middle-aged people with funds to invest should invest for growth. But what about persons who have only a modest salary and could use more income now?

A. Any rule can have exceptions. You say you are in your 40s with only $3,000 in savings, but will receive a $30,000 inheritance next year. In the same mail, a reader, 50, single, asked to where to invest $2,000 for income.

A person who barely manages to get by on a small salary should, by all means, invest a $30,000 windfall in income stocks. Planning for the future is prudent, but everyone has a right to live comfortably in the meanwhile.

I would vote to put that inheritance into four, five, or six different common stock issues — best rails, oils, utilities, hoping for a 6 to 7 per cent income plus some growth.

The same applies to the second reader who also wants more income now. (I trust the $2,000 to be invested is in addition to an emergency savings account equivalent to three to six months' wages.)

Any brokerage firm will supply you with a list of solid dividend stocks which yield a fair amount, have long-term dividend records, good earnings, and offer some hope of market gain over the years ahead. They may not be glamour stocks but could be good work horses.

Mr. Shulsky welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column. For information on mutual funds, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address your requests to Sam Shulsky, care of this newspaper.

Staffers Strike At WSU

DETROIT (AP) — Some 1,500 secretarial, clerical and technical employees at Wayne State University struck today after a 60-hour marathon bargaining session failed to produce a new contract. Fall classes for the university's 38,000 students do not begin until next Thursday. In the interval, a third union, the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) is continuing contract talks. The two unions which struck at 4:30 a.m. today were the University Staff Association, with 1,300 members and the Professional and Administrative Union, affiliated with Local 1979 of the United Auto Workers, which has 190 members.

FROM THE FRENCH

NEW YORK — Manure is a word from the Old French, literally meaning "handwork," and was applied to tillage by manual labor and, later, to the dressing applied to the land.

IT'S LEO-PARD

NEW YORK — The leopard is so called because in medieval times, the animal was thought to be a cross between the lion (leo) and the pard, a panther that had no markings.

The Presidential Debate

VOTER REACTION: While both President Ford and Jimmy Carter were claiming victory in Thursday's debate in Philadelphia, a nationwide poll by The Associated Press showed that neither candidate was a clear winner. The President, however, as indicated in the chart, attracted slightly more new supporters. (AP Wirephoto)

Stocks Decline Broadly

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today as investors pondered the most recent jump in the nation's money supply.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down more than six points and declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange took an almost 4-1 lead on those advancing.

Trading was active in early going, with the NYSE ticker tape three minutes late in recording trades at one point.

At the close of the NYSE on Thursday, the Federal Reserve reported that the nation's basic money supply jumped a seasonally adjusted $4.5 billion in the latest statement week.

Such jumps tend to increase investors' apprehension over a possible tightening of the Fed's credit policy, which would nudge interest rates up.

Opening prices today included American Telephone & Telegraph, unchanged at 49; Westinghouse Electric, down 1/2 at 18 1/2; and International Telephone & Telegraph, down 1/2 at 32 1/2.

AT&T was the early volume leader.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones Industrial average slipped 3.25 to 1,010.80. Declining issues led those advancing by a 5-3 margin.

Volume on the Big Board dipped to 24.21 million shares from the 32.97 million traded Wednesday.

The exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks declined .27 to 57.08.

And at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell .41 to 103.66.

Stumping For Bottle Ban

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Former Oregon Gov. Tom McCall will visit Michigan next month to support the proposed ban on non-returnable beverage containers. McCall's state enacted a ban on throwaway bottles in 1972, and he said he will try to "set the record straight" on the effects of Oregon's "bottle bill." McCall will be in Michigan on Oct. 5, according to a statement from the Michigan United Conservation Clubs. MUCC is the primary backer of a ballot proposal — "Proposal A" — seeking to outlaw non-returnable containers. McCall warned that the anti-bottle forces are "one of the most powerful lobbies in this country." And he said reports from Michigan lead him to believe the lobby is "distorting facts, trying to confuse voters and generally misleading the public into believing that throwaway bottles and cans are a necessary part of our society."

On Citizen Involvement

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Lt. Gov. James Damman has called on the state's 550 local Bicentennial committees to become permanent "citizen involvement councils." Damman, chairman of the state Bicentennial Commission, unveiled his plan for encouraging continued work on local community service projects Thursday in an address at a "Bicentennial volunteers dinner" at Michigan State University. The groups would be coordinated by the Commission for Volunteers in Michigan after the statewide Bicentennial program is phased out, he said. "It just seems like a waste of human resources for those groups to disband now that 1976 is ending," Damman said. "These committees ... are the most appropriate organizations for expanding the scope and effectiveness of local voluntary activity to address local needs."

It's Identical To Vetted Bill

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A senate committee Thursday approved a consumer protection bill identical to a measure vetoed earlier this year by Gov. William Milliken. The bill, which requires clear price markings on individual store items, was approved by the Senate Agriculture and Consumer Affairs Committee and sent to the full Senate. The sponsor of the bill, Sen. John Hertel, D-Harper Woods, said it would be easier to pass the bill again — on majority votes — than try to win a two-thirds vote to override Milliken's veto. The governor said he vetoed the original bill because it was "too broad and complex to be effectively administered and enforced."

Campaign Fund Bill Gets Nod

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Legislation to authorize partial public funding of future campaigns for governor won approval Thursday in a Senate committee. The Senate Municipalities and Elections Committee reported the bill to the full Senate on a vote of 3-2. Democrats voted for the measure, but Republicans objected to the concept of using public money for political campaigns and voted against it. The bill has already passed the House, but is expected to be altered slightly, which would require it to return to the House if approved by the full Senate. It is designed to reduce the political influence of large contributors by providing public money to gubernatorial candidates. The bill would allow people filing individual state income tax returns to check off $2 of their tax for a fund to provide money for the campaigns. Persons filing joint returns could check off $4.

Hunt For Plane Still On

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — The search for a plane missing since Monday over Michigan's Upper Peninsula shifted on Thursday to an area between Iron Mountain and Houghton. A spokesman for the Coast Guard Air Station in Traverse City said the search concentrated in that area after learning the two Lakeview, Mich., men aboard the plane had reserved motel rooms and a rental car at Houghton. Those aboard the plane were Allen Griffith, 51, the pilot; and 26-year-old Jerri Cook, the Coast Guard reported. The last radar contact with the plane was near Menominee, Mich., on Monday evening. The Coast Guard said there was a thunderstorm just north of Iron Mountain about the time the plane disappeared.
